HITLER MAKES NAZI SWASTIKA GERMANY'S FLAG

New Law Excludes Jew as Citizen.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 15.—Adolf Hitler tonight demanded and received the unanimous approval of his reichstag, convened in special session here, for three momentous laws.

The first law establishes the Nazi swastika as the national and trade flag of Germany and directs Hitler and his war minister to adopt a war flag. Black, white, and red are to be the colors of the nation and the flag. The second law forbids marriages of Jews to Aryans and the third sets up three classes of German citizenship, excluding Jews.

Hitler in a 12 minute speech lauded Germany's new army which will have its parade day tomorrow, declaring the army is not a threat to any European nation and adding "we will take no position on any foreign question that does not directly affect us." He directed a bitter tirade at Lithuania for mistreatment of Germans in Memel [which Lithuanians seized in 1923]. He took notice of the recent Comintern [communist international-ale] congress in Moscow, declaring "we are determined to meet communism in Germany with more effective measures of National Socialism."

Cites Bremen Incident.

Der Fuehrer opened his comments on Jews by branding them as "agitators among and separators of people." Then he turned to the Bremen incident in New York in which the swastika flag was torn from the liner's bow and thrown into the water. Subsequently Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky dismissed charges against five persons accused of the act, and in a side comment branded the Nazi banner a "pirate flag." Yesterday Secretary of State Hull expressed "regrets" to the German ambassador in Washington.

"The insult to the German flag in the United States, for which the United States apologized in dignified form, shows how far the international Jewish situation has progressed," Hitler asserted. "It is an illustration of the feeling of Jewry, even in an official capacity toward Germany, and an effective confirmation of the correctness of our National Socialist legislation which from the beginning aims at preventing once for all similar incidents."

May Increase Stringency.

Hitler recited a renewed boycott of Jews starting against Germany and said the new laws are "only an attempt at legal regulation" of Jews within Germany. Ominously he added that "should this not work, and if Jewish agitation within and without Germany continues, we will then examine the situation again." This is taken to mean that the respite may last only until the Olympic games of 1936 in Berlin.

As Hitler stepped aside Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, president of the reichstag, with a twenty-five minute speech presented the three decrees to the 600 members.

Earlier today Hitler reviewed 120,000 brown clothed Storm Troopers and black uniformed schutz staffel men and in an address prescribed lifetime service under military and semi-military organizations for all German males.

Forbids Mixed Marriages.

The first anti-Jewish law prescribes prison sentences as penalties for marriages between Jews and citizens of German or kindred blood, and declares such marriages void if performed in a foreign country. Extramarital relations between Jews and Aryans also are punishable by prison sentences. Jews are forbidden to employ Aryan women under 45 years in their households after Jan. 1, on penalty of imprisonment. Jews are not allowed to hoist the national flag, being limited to the Zionist blue and white emblem.

The citizenship law provides that only a person who "belongs to the protective association of the German empire and is especially obligated to the reich" may be a citizen of Germany. This citizen must be of German or kindred blood and show that he is willing to serve the German people. Thus Jews and Germans of whom the Nazis disapprove may be excluded. Citizenship certificates will be issued to those deemed worthy by the Nazis.

CITY'S STIRRING CONSTITUTION PAGEANT READY

Plans Complete for Event Tomorrow.

(Picture on Back Page.)

Chicago prepared yesterday for the celebration of Constitution day tomorrow, a day dedicated to a nation's principles of freedom, which is expected to be one of the greatest patriotic tributes in the city's history.

A parade, a musical program, speeches, and a glamorous pageant will commemorate this 148th anniversary of the adoption of the constitution, the document which is the supreme law of the land.

Final arrangements for the entire program, which will be held in the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night, were announced yesterday by the Constitution day committee.

Great Pageant Rehersed.

At the same time the final dress rehersal for the dramatic spectacle, "Land of Liberty," which will climax the celebration, was held at the Stadium. How the independence of a nation was achieved through constitutional guarantees will be the theme of the spectacle. A cast of more than 2,000 will enact the colorful, patriotic scenes. The rehersal yesterday culminating two weeks of training was under the direction of Isaac Van Grove, producer of the pageant.

The technical staf at the Stadium reported all was in readiness for the program. The spectacle will be given on two specially conistructed stages. Lighting and loud speaker systems have been perfected for the occasion.

Bar Group's Pageant Tonight.

Throughout the city today civic and fraternal groups will have their own observances in commemoration of the adoption of the constitution. Three programs will be given in the evening.

The Chicago Bar association will present a historical pageant, "The Making of the Constitution," at 8:30 p. m. in the Medinah temple, 14 East Ohio street. Twenty-five members of the association will participate in the pageant, playing the roles of patriots who were delegates to the constitutional convention and aided in the framing of that document—the law and guarantee of a free people.

The actors will wear historically accurate colonial costumes and will engage in debates, prepared from records of the convention. Judge Ross C. Hall of the Illinois Appellate court, chairman of the association's pageant committee, said yesterday that the play "is of great and vital interest not only to lawyers but to every one and impresses upon the mind this great event in a manner so forceful and vivid that it is never to be forgotten."

Union League Dinner Tonight.

The Union League club, which traces its beginning to the civil war, will hold a members' dinner tonight. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and Joseph B. Ely, former governor of Massachusetts, will be the speakers. Both men are strong constitutionalists. Club officials predicted yesterday that the dinner would draw the largest attendance of members in the last six years.

Col. George T. Buckingham, one of the club members, has drawn a resolution for a reaffirmation of principles pledging every resource of the organization in the support of an unchanged constitutional federal government. This resolution will be presented for adoption tonight.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President of the United States, and Frank J. Loesch, head of the Chicago crime commission, who hold honorary memberships in the club, will be on the rostrum. Former Gov. Lowden will be made an honorary member.

Women Plan Observance.

The Chicago forum of business and professional women will hold an open discussion tonight in the solarium dining room at 40 East Oak street. The topic will be: "The Constitution and Our Legislators: Federal, State, and Local." Attorney Mary Berkemeier-Quinn, president of the forum, will lead the discussion.

A musical and program of speeches in observance of Constitution day was held yesterday afternoon at the St. George School for Girls, 4545

PLAYING NAPOLEON

General Loses Saber to Sharp Thief at a Ball

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Beauty gleamed and chivalry glittered at the brilliant ball given in the Fifth Maryland regiment armory in celebration of the 121st anniversary of the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

BRIG. GEN. HILL.

Governors of states [several were present] spoke sonorously to each other as long ago the chief executives of the twin Carolinas were wont to speak. Majors bowed to colonels and colonels bent lower still to generals.

Gen. Hill Shining Light.

Most resplendent of all was a former congressman, Brig. Gen. John Philip Hill, assistant adjutant general of Maryland. His uniform was of fine melton cloth. Over it crept yards and yards of gold braid interspersed with decorations. Around the general's waist was a shining lether belt, and attached to it a scabbard, a scabbard to hold the saber of a general.

Many were the whispered compliments on his military bearing, much the interest in his magnificence. But in this, his hour of glory, unwelcome news was nearing. The bearer of the message was a red headed lady.

"My dear general," she said, "I just realized that you are practically hors de combat."

What's This? What's This?

"And how so?" demanded Gen. Hill.

"Somebody," replied the red head, "has stolen your knife."

The general looked at his scabbard. It was true. The general's saber was gone. He had worn it to the ball. A pickscabbard had got it.

An investigation disclosed that all the sabers present had been brought by their owners. Two days have now passed and Gen. Hill is still saberless. Tonight he issued a statement.

"It was not a very good saber," he said, "and it did not fit the scabbard. That's why I did not notice when it was taken from me. Besides, it had a crack in the hilt."

100,000 ATTEND CONCERT IN PARK; PLAN ONE MORE

A crowd estimated at 100,000 heard a specially arranged program played last night by the combined orchestras of the Chicago Symphony, the Women's Symphony, and the Chicago Civic Opera, numbering 225 musicians.

James C. Petrillo, Chicago park commissioner and president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, in making the estimate that 100,000 gathered at the band shell in the park, said that the 45,000 seats placed around the shell were occupied, while as many more sat in the grass behind the seats, and other thousands sat on the steps of the Field museum. The finale of the concert, which included the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner," was marked by a brilliant fireworks display.

After obtaining the assent of Dr. Frederick Stock of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, who conducted last night's concert, Mr. Petrillo announced that the same group would give a final concert Wednesday night.

Mr. Petrillo estimated that, including last night's concert, the 65th of the summer series, about 2,000,000 have attended the open air performances.

Soviet Army Descends from Sky in 'Chutes

KIEV, U. S. S. R., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Soviet military strategists dropped an army from the sky today as they practiced their latest war maneuver—mass landing of fully equipped troops with parachutes.

The air was darkened with jumpers bearing rifles and submachine guns. They landed behind "enemy" lines, formed ranks quickly and bore down upon an opposing airdrome.

Met by Land Forces.

Whole regiments, landing from the skies, succeeded in capturing the airdrome but later came to theoretical grief. When they used the airdrome as a base from which to advance overland to attack the main "enemy" forces from the rear, they were met by a quickly mobilized defense force which, with the aid of tanks and armored trains, "annihilated" them.

The sky army dropped from squadrons of big transport airplanes, each of which carried 30 jumpers. Gripping their rifles and submachine guns, the soldiers leaped one after another, pulled their ripcords and floated slowly to land. Once on the ground they freed themselves from their parachutes, which they abandoned on the field.

Show 358 in Air at Once.

The landing was effected in daylight and was caught by a battery of cameras. One of the pictures showed 358 jumpers in the air at once.

War Commissar Klem Voroshilov and military missions of France, Italy, and Czechoslovakia witnessed the operations.

SUBWAY SNORER BAIT THAT NABS 7 PICKPOCKETS

New York, Sept. 15.—[Special.]—A snoring man seeking surcease from the city's mad whirl on a bench in the Fourteenth street subway station was the bait this morning for a police trap that collected seven subway pickpockets.

The man, detectives told a magistrate, slept soundly through most of the pocket-picking attempts.

"Didn't he wake up at all?" asked the magistrate.

"Only slightly, your honor," they replied.

Beat Dodgers, 6-3; Cards 2 Games Behind

IF!!

The Cubs have 11 more games to play, the Cardinals 15 more and the Giants 18 before the National league season is concluded. All of the Cubs' games are with first division teams.

If the Cubs win only 6 while losing 5 of their remaining games the Cardinals must win 10 out of 15 and the Giants 13 out of 18 to be tied at the finish with 97 victories and 57 defeats.

If the Cards win 9 out of 15, the Giants 12 out of 18 and the Cubs 6 out of 11 the final standing would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	97	57	.630
St. Louis	96	58	.623
New York	96	58	.623

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The league leading Cubs strode forward again yesterday in their stretch drive toward the National league pennant. They moved to their twelfth straight triumph, their longest streak of the year, encouraged in their progress by some more of the strange antics to which the Daffy Dodgers from Brooklyn are addicted. The score was 6 to 3, three of the victors' runs being earned and three being gifts. The three scored by the visitors represented all they could do while Bill Lee was pitching his way to his eighteenth triumph of the year.

The Cubs went into the battle holding a four point edge over the receding world champion St. Louis Cardinals. They came out of it with a ten point margin. Some of the points accrued as the result of what the Cubs did in their own back yard. The others were contributed by the New York Giants, who bowled over the title holders for the third straight time, leaving the Cubs with a two game lead, and, for the first time since the flag drive got under way, even with the Cards in games lost. But the Giants, who open a four game series at Wrigley field today, have become a menace. They are 3½ games behind the Cubs.

Lee Settles Down.

Lee came up with only one bad inning and that was enough to throw a real scare into the 28,890 spectators. The Dodgers, as a warm-up for their clowning, clubbed the big right-hander for two runs at the start, but couldn't come back after that. In the remaining eight innings they reached the southern athlete for only four hits, two of which resulted in a run in the eighth. Lee didn't even require sensational support. His teammates just conducted a machinelike defense and that was sufficient.

The three runs earned by the Cubs were mainly a matter of Gabby Hartnett's activities. After Augie Galan had scored as the result of his own double, Hartnett brought on a tie by banging his 13th homer into the right field seats in the first inning. Then there was a long stretch in which the Dodgers concentrated on errors, much to the distress of Southpaw William Watson Clark. The blundering gave the Cubs two runs in the second and another in the third. Then Hartnett doubled in the seventh and this led to a legitimate tally.

Dodgers Open with Two.

Lee's difficulties in the first inning were numerous, but luck and his mates stuck with him or the damage would have exceeded two runs. He

40,000 TROOPS CLOSE TO EGYPT, LEAGUE HEARS

See Blow Aimed at Link in Empire.

The Day's Developments

GENEVA—Movement of Italian troops to Libya stirs fear Premier Mussolini intends to smash into Egypt, keystone of the British empire. League of nations circles reported ready to slap economic boycott on Italy.

ROME—Italy rushes 14,000 more soldiers to East Africa as cabinet speeds up plans for war against Ethiopia.

ADDIS ABABA—Ethiopians shout "We want war!" in wild demonstration before imperial palace. Natives brandish rifles, swords, and knives in war dances.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 15.—Premier Mussolini has once more raised the stake in the world's most dangerous poker game and the league of nations is waiting anxiously to see if Great Britain is going to raise him back.

The reference in the Italian cabinet communique yesterday to sending military reinforcements to Libya has a much graver significance than any one realized. THE TRIBUNE learns from an authoritative source that the reinforcement amounts to 40,000 men with tanks and field artillery.

Backed by Air Bases.

They will join the strong native and European forces of the Italians already concentrated near the Libyan-Egyptian frontier and will be backed up by the powerful chain of air bases which Air Marshal Italo Balbo has been organizing ever since he was appointed governor of the Italian colony.

This constitutes a concrete threat to Egypt, keystone of the British empire, where it is said British forces, not counting the naval units recently concentrated at Alexandria, do not number more than 10,000 men. What is even graver is that the British have received reports from district officials in Egypt that Italian propaganda is beginning to take a dangerous hold on the natives.

The Italian government radio station at Bari for months has been broadcasting violently anti-British and inflammatory propaganda in seven languages, including Arabic, while Italian agents scattered throughout Egyptian territory have been equally active. The British government recently protested to Rome against "incitement against a foreign nation in time of peace" through the Italian broadcasts.

Fear War in Europe.

With the necessity of deciding on some action to curb Italy looming nearer every day, the Italian threat against Egypt takes on a particularly alarming character, not only for the British people, who are thinking about peace and their empire, but for the rest of the world, which is thinking only about peace. For if the Italians reply to an economic boycott by attacking Egypt, or by intensifying the threat against Egypt, it will mean war in the Mediterranean and a war in the Mediterranean is likely to spread over all Europe.

Whereas a few weeks ago talk of a European war arising out of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict was purely speculative, leading delegations here now think of it as a danger which is real and near. There is hardly a general staf in Europe which is not drafting plans for an offensive or defensive war on this or that front, according to how things work out.

Council Ready to Act.

The threat of a conflict in Europe will become real the day the league council decides on whether to take economic or military action against Italy and that day is very near. The subcommittee of five did not finish its report today, but hopes to complete it tomorrow. Unless somebody backs down there is no way of preventing the council from meeting before the end of the week. When the council meets the situation will be this:

The struggle going on behind the scenes between the French and British over the application of article 15 will have been fought out to its conclusion. If the French win, that means the British have decided to back down on the whole issue of blocking Mussolini. If, as seems likely, the British stand firm, the French is a public vote will have to support a move to apply the fatal article.

[Article 15 of the league covenant calls for the submission of any conflict, likely to lead to a rupture, to the council. The council's duty is to attempt to effect a settlement.]

Forced to Keep Peace.

The council at the same time would adopt the report of the committee of five as its own. Once the report is adopted by the council, it becomes a decision for peaceful settlement of the dispute.

If both the Ethiopians and Italians reject the decision, they must keep the peace none the less for three months—which automatically will kill all of Italy's chances for carrying out a successful campaign before rains again set in.

If in the next three months either side accepts the council's decision, the other party is automatically outlawed if it starts a war at any time in the future. In that case, the penalties against an aggressor as provided in article 16 must take effect automatically.

Ponder Over Penalties.

At the moment the greatest confusion reigns regarding the subject of punishment. The general opinion is that the penalty, or sanction, which is easiest to apply and most likely to be effective is an agreement of all league powers neither to buy anything from Italy nor sell anything to her.

A general boycott of Italian goods, it is believed, would rapidly exhaust the Italian gold reserve. Since no one would be likely to give her credit, her supply of raw materials would automatically be cut off. The Italians are believed to have enough cash to hold out for eighteen months if no penalties are taken.

In case this formula is adopted, the United States will virtually hold the key to the situation. European powers feel confident that they can count on President Roosevelt, once a war breaks out, to interpret cotton, wheat, and other raw materials as war material and under the American neutrality legislation forbid direct shipment to Italy and Ethiopia.

Ready to Boycott Italy.

The powers here were all prepared to apply economic pressure against Italy. The next week will show whether they still are. The Italian maneuver against Egypt, if it means anything at all, means that Mussolini will punish Britain for taking part in the sanctions by striking at the empire in its most vulnerable spot.

Some league circles which believe that Mussolini intends to go to war point to the historic parallel with Napoleon, with whom Il Duce likes to compare himself. Napoleon's original concept was to wrest the British empire out of hands he thought no longer capable of holding it. For the success of this plan he counted on the occupation of Egypt. Now some wonder if Mussolini is anxious to follow in his footsteps.

When the Egyptian campaign failed, Napoleon tried to organize a United States of Europe to combat England. In the end it was the British who rallied the continent to a war of liberation against a tyrant. If Mussolini has forgotten this, the British have not, as their attempt to rally the league to their support here shows.

Two Italian Submarines Sail Into the Suez Canal

LONDON, Sept. 15. — (AP) — The Reuter's [British] correspondent at Port Said reported today that two Italian submarines, the Tricheco and the Narvalo, arrived yesterday. The dispatch said they entered the Suez canal this morning.

IL DUCE RUSHES MORE TROOPS TO AFRICA FOR WAR

14,000 Soldiers Sail on Six Transports.

ROME, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Italy fitted action today to her cabinet's cry of "no compromise" and sped nearly 14,000 more Black Shirts toward East Africa on six ships—a record single day's embarkation.

An intensive week of war preparations began with 12,000 men of the Assietta and Cosseria divisions sailing from Genoa on the Roma, the Italia, the Aquilela, and the Calabria.

The steamers Quirinale and Atlanta left Naples crammed with 82 officers and 1,664 Black Shirts.

Expect Decisive Developments.

Today's sailings brought the total of troops sent to East Africa on regular transports to 164,000, while 30,000 workmen and about 15,000 troops have embarked on coastal ships and tramp steamers carrying war materials.

In Rome's political and diplomatic circles it was believed the week would see decisive developments in the Ethiopian situation. These observers were certain the league of nations' committee of five would report at Geneva with its compromise solution of the quarrel.

They were just as sure that if the committee reports before Wednesday the Italian cabinet, called into session on that day, would reject the solution unless it contains an unexpected provision for Italian military control over Emperor Haile Selassie's nation. The cabinet, meeting yesterday, refused in advance any "compromise solution."

Fear Frontier "Incident."

There was a growing uneasiness here that some serious frontier incident might precipitate momentous events before the end of the Ethiopian rainy season, which is generally supposed to be the signal for the beginning of hostilities.

Today's newspapers were full of Ethiopian mobilization plans and told of the concentration of Ethiopian troops on the Eritrean and Somaliland frontiers.

A vast one day Fascist mobilization is to be held soon, it was announced by Achilles Starace, the Fascist party secretary. The rally will include allegiance to the Fascist régime.

American consular officials, it was stated, think this development may imperil the American citizenship of hundreds of naturalized citizens of the United States. The consular authorities in several cities of Italy were reported as believing the Americans affected would be citizens of Italian origin now living in Italy who have joined the Fascist organizations.

If they take an oath of allegiance in the forthcoming mobilization this will be sufficient basis for the American consulates in their respective districts to withdraw their passports and cancel their American citizenship, the authority explained.

While preparing in East Africa Italy is also preparing on the mainland against any emergency. Further indication of the extent of this preparation was given by the announcement that the provincial administration in Rome had made plans for the construction of anti-aircraft refuges in the basements of buildings now under construction.

Ethiopians Cry for War.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Two thousand shrieking Ethiopians clamored before the imperial palace today, begging Emperor Haile Selassie for arms and shouting: "We want war!"

The emperor appeared at a window to appease the throng, which then engaged in wild war dances and brandished rifles, swords and knives.

They were led by veterans of the battle of Adowa, where Italians met crushing defeat in 1896. A number of Sudanese chiefs also were in the crowd. The scene was so violent that police confiscated motion picture films of it.

Selassie, although his general mobilization order is already in print, will not flash it to the country until Italy fires the first gun or the emperor is informed officially that the league of nations has failed in its peace efforts.

Women to Join Colors.

When—and if—that moment comes even Ethiopia's priests and women will rally to join a half million other Ethiopians in a grim defense of their empire.

Government circles evinced no surprise at the Italian cabinet communique saying the quarrel admits of "no compromise solution." Nevertheless, Ethiopia's faith that Great Britain and France, supported by other members of the league, will prevent an attack was so strong the emperer withheld general mobilization.

It was learned on the highest authority that many military surprises are in store for the Italians. These have been evolved especially to conform to the country's great natural defenses, forming a chain of vast rocky forts protecting the coveted plateaus.

Devise Modern Tactics.

Military experts have worked out these preparations in conformity with the tactics of modern war in cooperation with the great feudal chiefs, who were said to realize fully that their traditional methods of combating invasion must be adapted to meet the warfare of a mechanized army.

Changed conditions of warfare have been explained to the populace by quaint village criers, who summon the people to the village square by tom-toms and trumpets and tell them that the basis of a new form of resistance is implicit obedience to the orders of the emperor.

They also have been lectured on what the loss of independence would mean to Ethiopia, and told that if they are conquered they will have no emperor to hear their grievances, to redress their wrongs and to counsel them.

Meanwhile the first 3,000 additional Ethiopian soldiers left for the front, many women insisting upon following them.

ITALIANS ALARMED AS TRIBES BECOME UNEASY IN COLONY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Persistent rumors that trouble is brewing at Cyrenaica on the border between Libya and Egypt were reported from Cairo today. For the last three months the Italians have been steadily withdrawing troops normally stationed at Cyrenaica and replacing them with more dependable Somali tribesmen.

Italians in Cyrenaica are anxious about the attitude of the local tribes in the event of war with Ethiopia. Cyrenaica may be under Italian control but has not been completely subjugated and the local tribes are only waiting an opportunity for revenge.

Triple barbed wire fences stretching 150 miles from the sea to Jarabub along the Egyptian border have been erected by the Italians. Cairo officials are reported to be unperturbed by reports of a possible offensive against Egypt and no attempt has been made to move troops to the Libyan frontier.

STRIKE AND WAR THREATS ANNOY THE PRESIDENT

Coal, European Crises Watched Closely.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Receiving only one visitor, Judge Ferdinand Pecora of New York City, and leaving his summer estate only to attend church services in the nearby village, President Roosevelt spent today quietly.

But he was continually in telephone and telegraphic communication with Washington in connection with developments in the Italo-Ethiopian situation and also with regard to the threatened strike of soft coal miners.

Perturbed Over War Clouds.

The President is reported to be perturbed over the approaching crisis in Europe. He is receiving full and immediate reports on developments abroad from Secretary of State Cordell Hull. He has indorsed Hull's stand that the moral power of the United States should be placed behind any movement to avert war, but has emphasized that the neutrality law passed by the last congress compels him to proclaim an embargo on implements of war with regard to warring nations.

Hull is acting under the personal direction of the President, it was learned. Messages and statements issued by the secretary of state are not only approved but in most cases inspired by the chief executive.

Urges Coal Compromise.

Mr. Roosevelt also talked over the long distance telephone to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and Edward McGrady, assistant secretary of labor. He urged a compromise of the dispute between labor leaders and operators regarding wages and working conditions pending the setting up of an organization under the Guffey coal act to fix wages and prices in the bituminous coal industry.

PILSUDSKI BODY SWEEPS POLISH SENATE ELECTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Sept. 15.—The Polish government achieved a record majority in the senate elections today. The Pilsudski non-partisan group elected 60 of the 64 senators in 17 electoral districts. The Ukrainian minority, which claims 6,000,000 persons, elected three senators, while the 1,000,000 German minority elected only one. Jews, White Russian and Russian minorities failed to elect a single representative.

The elections were quiet. A total of 2,500 electors congregated in 17 cities where they cast votes for the list of candidates presented by the government.

Foreign Minister Col. Josef Beck, who is at Geneva, was one of the six senators elected from Warsaw. Eight generals and a number of big estate owners headed by Prince Janusz Radziwill were winners. The Polish peasantry will not be represented in the new senate.

The senate's remaining 32 members will be appointed by President Ignace Moscicki. Final returns of last Sunday's parliamentary election gave the government 190 votes out of 208.

Newton C. King Home Robbed of Gems and Silver

Burglars entered the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Newton C. King at 501 Briar place late yesterday and carried away a set of sterling silverware and several articles of jewelry, valued in all at about $4,500. Mr. King told the police that members of the family had been absent for several hours and that the thieves apparently entered with a pass key.

YANKEE MEDICAL UNIT WILL SERVE ETHIOPIAN ARMY

Wheaton Missionary Heads Mission.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Dr. Robert Hockman of Wheaton, Ill., will leave this capital in a few days with the first foreign medical unit for the northern military front.

The 32 year old medical missionary is regarded by Ethiopian officials as their youngest but most brilliant physician. He is a member of the United Presbyterian mission here.

The young missionary's plan is to leave with 500 native burden-bearers and 400 mules carrying 50 native assistants and five white missionary volunteers. The caravan will carry several tons of medicines, stretchers, and surgical needs for the soldiers.

Willing to Run Risks.

Dr. Hockman said he would take no soldiers or arms for protection en route. Born in Szechuan province, China, he said he was already familiar with bandit raids and was willing to run all risks inherent to travel in the interior of Ethiopia.

The doctor turned from the vaccination of 3,000 of Emperor Haile Selassie's warriers today to state:

"We need no protection beyond the mercy of God, whom we serve.

"Among the grim warriors of Ethiopia such a thing as surgical or medical aid is unknown. These tribesmen bear silently the most terrible wounds, which would kill other men instantly. They are left to die or be eaten by wild beasts where they fall.

Ex-Marine to Join Unit.

"Ours is the first military medical unit in Ethiopia's history. We are proud that it is American. Naturally, we shall run great risks, but then, these mountain stoics are worth saving. If we die, it will be in the service of the Lord."

Hockman invited Capt. Collings of Jersey City, former aviator, to accompany the unit to its headquarters behind historic Adowa, protected by 10,000 foot mountains.

GIANT ILLICIT STILL SEIZED, TWO JAILED IN PALOS PARK RAID

One of the largest illicit stills ever seized in Cook county was uncovered yesterday in a raid by state highway policemen on a farm near 123d street and Wolf road, an isolated section of Palos Park. Two men were arrested and three women were questioned and later released.

Sergt. Charles Zak led the raid after making his own investigation. In a red barn, 75 feet long, the raiders found 100,500 gallons of mash in 7 huge vats, 50 fifty gallon drums of molasses, and a 500 gallon still which was in operation at the time. A quantity of alcohol also was found.

The two men arrested in the barn gave their names as Ben Press of the Savoy hotel, Hammond, Ind., and Frank Maranto, 15719 Myrtle avenue, Harvey. Mrs. Emma McQue, who was found in the farmhouse with her two daughters, denied knowing anything about the still. Press and Maranto were turned over to federal officers.

UNION SLUGGER SHOT IN BATTLE WITH POLICEMAN

John [Red] Gill, 30 years old, 739 West 44th street, known to the police as a slugger for the painters' union, was shot and seriously wounded last night in a battle with Policeman John Burns, who is assigned to the dog pound.

Burns, off duty and in civilian clothing, was in a saloon at 659 West 43d street when Gill, it is alleged, attacked him. The fight continued to the street where the policeman drew his pistol and fired, striking his opponent in the right thigh. Burns said he did not know Gill and that the latter apparently was mistaken about his identity.

The wounded man was taken to the Bridewell hospital. On Aug. 2 Gill was arrested in a raid on the painters' union headquarters at 5444 Wentworth avenue, where six pistols were seized.

BOY, 10, IS KILLED AND TEN HURT IN TRAFIC COLLISION

Mortimer Flynn's Driver Strikes Pedestrian.

A 10 year old boy was killed and ten other persons were injured, none seriously, last night, when a truck in which the child was riding turned over in a ditch after a collision with an automobile in Roosevelt road, a quarter of a mile west of Wolf road in Hillside. The occupants of the truck were returning from a picnic.

George Walter Adams, 10 years old, 3009 Warren boulevard, was the boy killed. His father, Irving, 52 years old, was driving the truck, in which the boy's mother, Mrs. Ruby Adams, 30 years old; a sister, Ruby, 7 years old, and a brother, James, 5 years old, were passengers.

Driver of Auto Hurt.

James Marasco, 29 years old, 6906 West 19th street, Berwyn, driver of the automobile in which five other persons were riding, incurred a fractured ankle. He told Chief Adam Stange of Hillside that an oncoming automobile forced his machine into the truck as he attempted to pass it. Marasco was held in the Bellwood jail.

Frank D. McGreevy, 65 years old, 2606 Prairie avenue, was killed last night when he was struck at 16th street and Michigan avenue by an automobile belonging to Mortimer B. Flynn, 6726 South Shore drive, wealthy coal merchant who was a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor in the last primary.

Alone in the car was Mr. Flynn's chauffeur, Charles Lashley, colored, 40 years old. Lashley told the police that McGreevy staggered in front of the car and that he had no chance to avoid striking him.

Blame Fog for Accident.

Arthur Hillman, 48 years old, 2842 Fletcher street, was killed early yesterday and one of his four companions was injured when their automobile crashed into a machine that had run out of gasoline and had stopped in Rand road near Dempster street, Des Plaines.

Because of fog, William Gunther, 52 years old, 1857 Larrabee street, driver of the machine in which Hillman was a passenger, failed to see the fuelless car, owned by Frank Dombek, 24 years old, 2032 North Damen avenue, who was standing beside it with his brother Joseph at the time of the crash.

Barely Touching Slab.

Police said Dombek's car stood nearly off the pavement. Gunther was taken to the Columbus hospital. Dombek was ordered held for an inquest today into Hillman's death.

The three foregoing deaths and two others increased the 1935 automobile accident toll of Cook county to 664. At 4 p. m. yesterday 515 persons had been killed within the Chicago city limits since Jan. 1 and 11,822 had been injured. The other deaths yesterday:

Mexican, unidentified, struck at Roosevelt road and Ashland avenue by a hit and run autoist. Died at County hospital.

Colored man, unidentified, killed at State and 23d street by a motorist who turned off his lights and sped away.

Four men were injured early last evening when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a safety island in Milwaukee avenue at Medina avenue. The car turned over several times. The victims are Charles Boras, 25 years old, 1537 Holt street; John Went, 20, of 1020 North Paulina street, and Samuel Chemel, 54, and his son, Theodore Chemel, 25, of 1456 Holt street. Witnesses told police that four others who were riding in the wrecked machine fled, deserting their injured comrades.

U. S. AIDS HUNT FOR FERNEKES AS PRECAUTION

D. M. Ladd, agent in charge of the local office of the bureau of investigation of the United States department of justice, said yesterday that the government is coöperating with Illinois in the hunt for Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes, notorious gunman and bank robber who was permitted to walk out of the Joliet penitentiary last month. A circular containing Fernekes' picture, finger prints and measurements, was in the mails yesterday, sent by the government to every city in the country.

"So far as we know Fernekes has committed no crimes against the government since his escape," Mr. Ladd said yesterday. "We are sending out a circular asking his arrest as a matter of coöperation and not because he is wanted by the government. But he might rob a federal bank."

MARTIAL REVIEW HONORS BOARD OF TRADE WAR UNITS

In colorful ceremonies at the Grant monument and in the Chicago Historical society building in Lincoln park, tribute was paid yesterday to the Chicago Board of Trade for its patriotic contributions to the United States in the civil and Spanish-American wars and to the United States and France in the world war.

The program, sponsored by the Board of Trade post of the American Legion, was a martial note in the observances leading up to the celebration tomorrow of Constitution day. Its high light was the presentation of civil and Spanish war flags and colors to the Board of Trade post and the presentation by Rene Weiller, French consul at Chicago, of the French flag and regimental colors of section sanitaire unit 623, 61st infantry division, French army, and their decoration with the Croix de Guerre.

Get Ambulance Unit's Flags.

Presentation of the French flags was in recognition of the board's gift to the French army in 1917 of three ambulances. Three Board of Trade men, Raymond S. Simons, Wesley S. McClean, and Walter S. Boggs, went to France and drove them for the unit whose colors were presented yesterday.

On the platform during the presentation, besides ranking officers of the army and navy and representatives of various military organizations, were four veterans of units organized during the civil war by the Board of Trade. They are Maj. Edmund Luff, 94 years old; William Metzger, 87; James K. Arnold, 97, and Albert E. Gage, 90.

Thousands See March.

After services at the Grant monument during which the 122d Field Artillery, Illinois national guard, saluted the civil war veterans, the troops and veterans' organizations formed and paraded past the Lincoln monument where they were reviewed by the consul and the veterans. Thousands were massed along the line of march.

Services in the historical society auditorium followed the parade. There was a program of period music dedicated to John Hand, civil war bandmaster, given by the Board of Trade band directed by Armin F. Hand, son of John Hand.

In the addresses that followed were many references to the constitution.

LEGION PERSUADES COLBY NOT TO MAKE ADDRESS AT PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Bainbridge Colby, leader of a movement among conservative Democrats for a revival of the party along Jeffersonian principles, has been persuaded by American Legion officials not to fill his schedule engagement to address their forthcoming convention at St. Louis.

Mr. Colby accepted the invitation two months ago to address the Legion convention on "Americanism," a subject on which he has been making speeches throughout the country. Last week, following his activities in the promotion of a third party to oppose President Roosevelt, Legion officials visited him in New York and told him his presence might involve them in a partisan controversy.

The significance of the Legion's action is that the leaders apparently are resigned to the support of President Roosevelt, despite his hostility to the payment of the bonus, the passage of which is regarded as certain when congress convenes.

It is believed doubtful that he will choose to appear before the veterans, however, because of the two controversial questions—immediate payment of the bonus and withdrawal of recognition from Russia—which will be before the convention.

The final program for Constitution day tomorrow was announced yesterday by Julius H. Miner, general director.

Parade at 7 P. M. Tomorrow.

At 7 o'clock in the evening an automobile parade will begin on the east and west streets north of the Chicago river, south of Chicago avenue, and west of Michigan boulevard. More than 1,000 decorated cars will be in the parade. Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin will be the marshal. Organizations from the city, county, and the adjoining country will participate.

The line of march will be south on Wabash avenue, across the bridge into Wacker drive, west on Wacker drive to Washington boulevard, and west on the boulevard to the vicinity of Wood street, where the parade will disband and the participating units will proceed to the Stadium.

At 7:30 p. m. a concert of contemporary American music will be given in the Stadium by a 75 piece symphonic orchestra and noted soloists, under the direction of Leo Kopp.

The speaking program will begin at 8:30 p. m. After a welcoming address by Homer Guck, general chairman, an invocation will be given by Dr. Louis L. Mann of the Sinai congregation. This will be followed by the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and an introductory address by Mr. Miner.

Three Principal Speakers.

The three principal speakers of the evening are Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who is presiding chairman of the celebration; Col. Frank Knox, and James A. Reed, former United States senator from Missouri.

Prayer will then be read by the Rev. John Thompson of the Methodist temple and the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. Father Arthur Louis Gernard of St. John the Baptist church.

ST. MIHIEL AWARDS PERSHING MEDAL FOR DELIVERANCE IN WAR

ST. MIHIEL, France, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing received a medal today from grateful St. Mihiel citizens as they planted an oak tree in his honor and renewed expressions of gratitude for their deliverance from the Germans 17 years ago.

Planting of the "Pershing oak" honored the former American commander on his 75th birthday anniversary although this actually occurred on Friday. Almost the whole town turned out for the ceremony despite a steady rain. The general was a guest of honor at a reception at the city hall attended by French and American officials and war veterans.

The mayor presented Pershing the medal with the wish that Pershing, who is an honorary citizen here, enjoy long life and happiness. Pershing replied that he considered the deliverance of St. Mihiel on Sept. 12, 1918, as "a great honor personally and for the United States army."

A banquet at which speakers called Pershing "the American Lafayette" was followed by a parade to the railroad station, where the oak tree was planted.

PICKETS STORM FARM AND HALT MILK DELIVERIES

Sherif Arthur Bennett of Du Page county yesterday arranged a truce between the management of the Natoma dairy farm in Hinsdale and 500 farmers who started picketing Saturday night to prevent trucks moving to or from the farm.

The Natoma firm has 30 of these trucks and delivers milk to several thousand customers in the western suburbs. Because of the picketing the deliveries were several hours late yesterday. Conferences at which it is hoped the differences will be adjusted are to be held today.

The displeasure of the pickets was aroused when the Natoma dairy began buying its supplies of milk from Wisconsin instead of from farmers in Kane and Du Page counties. E. H. Burns, the dairy manager, said that the change was made in order to get pure Guernsey milk, the close in suppliers having mostly Holstein herds. He added that, in conformity with its contract with the Pure Milk association, Natoma had given 30 days' notice of the intention to change. He asserted that large quantities of milk had been dumped by the pickets or their friends.

SOUTH TO BACK CONSTITUTION IN 1936, SAYS TEXAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—John Henry Kirby, Houston, Tex., oil and lumber man and chairman of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, today predicted that the south in 1936 would go overwhelmingly for a conservative Democrat, a Republican, or anybody else "who is not willing to abandon the constitution for something that has been gathered from the garbage cans of Europe."

Mr. Kirby says his committee now has 50,000 members, including prominent citizens of all the southern states, and that it is increasing daily by thousands. The committee, he said, will hold a national convention in Washington early in December with a view to defeating Roosevelt.

Mr. Kirby said the whole south was rising up in rebellion against the plans of the Roosevelt administration to undermine the constitution and obliterate state lines by the extension of the central burocracy.

Mr. Kirby, who was a close friend of the late Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey of Texas, a leading constitutionalist, said that even the cotton farmers of his state were resentful of "the meddlesome hand of the federal government," despite the bounties they receive under the Agricultural Adjustment act.

4,000 SIGHTSEERS SWAMP GUIDES IN CHINATOWN TOUR

A crowd of nearly 4,000 persons gathered at 22d and State streets last night to make a walking tour of Chinatown. Less than half that number had been expected by the Chicago Recreation commission for the tour, one of a series of free sightseeing trips sponsored by the commission.

Extra guides were hastily summoned and the sightseers were conducted in relays. A dozen police from the Pekin station were assigned to the district to keep trafic moving.

The tourists visited the Chinese city hall at 22d street and Wentworth avenue, numerous stores and other places of interest in the district.

POLES CHEER NEW LINER ON MAIDEN VOYAGE TO N. Y.

GYDNIA, Poland, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Poland's new 14,400 ton trans-Atlantic motorship, the Pilsudski, sailed today for New York on her maiden voyage with a full passenger list. The ship's officers expect to take eight and a half days for the crossing. They will put into Copenhagen tomorrow.

Gala excursion trains brought Poles from all parts of the country to visit their liner, which is Poland's fourth.

Among the 700 passengers were a number of high government and army officials. Adam Koc, vice minister of finance, will represent the government and the president of Poland when the Pilsudski arrives in New York. The ship will be the only one plying between Gydnia and New York this winter. The other three ships have been transferred to the Palestine line.

VETERANS PUSH REAL PROBE OF STORM DEATHS

Open Convention in New Orleans.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—A congressional investigation of what happened on Matecumbe, the "island of grief," in the Florida keys during the hurricane and tidal wave of Sept 2, when hundreds of war veterans lost their lives, is to be demanded by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States in the course of the convention which opened here today.

The national council of administration of the organization has accepted and approved the report on this tragedy made by J. J. Skillman of Miami, one of its members, who made a personal investigation, fixing negligence or incapacity on Roy Sheldon, FERA supervisor on the island. The evidence gathered by Skillman is to be kept for the hoped for congressional action.

In the meantime Audrey Williams, who was sent to Florida by Harry Hopkins, head of the PWA, has made a report to the President exonerating the administration officials and blaming the whole thing on "an act of God."

U. S. Starts New Probe.

This report has aroused the civic associations, the ministerial association of Miami, and the Veterans, and in order to fend off the coming storm the administration has started a new investigation, sending John J. Abt, associate general counsel of FWPA, to Florida. The Williams report now is referred to as "preliminary." The veterans' administration at Washington has also sent two men to the scene, Capt. Farmer and David W. Kennamer, an investigator.

Mr. Skillman, past commander of the Miami chapter, has brought pictures of the tragedy to the convention and the Veterans are open in their denunciation of the officials who failed to get the men off the island in time.

"When it is all ended," said Skillman today, "we probably will find that around 600 veterans lost their lives in Florida. There were supposed to be between 800 and 1,100 men there when the hurricane struck. We have not the exact figures.

"We are not particularly interested in punishing Mr. Sheldon or anyone else, but we want to prevent a recurrence of such a thing. In order to do this we intend to ask that the veterans work relief camps in Florida keys be discontinued for all time. The Indians abandoned these islands 50 years ago.

Want Military Commanders.

"Another thing we want is to have such camps directed by active or retired army, navy, or marine officers. If one of our army officers had been in charge there, when the veterans asked to be taken out, he would have found a way to get them out. There were plenty of trucks available, and if they did not work the men would have hauled them with cables. The military forces get things done.

"By the Williams report we must charge Sheldon either with ignorance or negligence. That he was not ignorant is shown by the fact that he sent his own family out of the storm path in time. Families of other officials were told to get out. The men were left to wait.

36th V. F. W. Encampment.

This is the 36th national encampment of the V. F. W. They have 200,000 members in 3,300 posts and are now starting a campaign to increase membership 100,000 next year. The commander in chief is James E. Van Zandt, who states in his report that Commander Frank M. Belgrano and other leaders of the American Legion, which meets in St. Louis next week, are personally responsible for the failure of the 74th congress to pay the bonus.

"Had our brother organization, the American Legion, coöperated with us in our effort to obtain payment of the balance of the adjusted service certificates, little doubt remains that a sufficient number of votes could have been mustered to override the presidential veto in the senate, thereby settling this question for all time," he said. Definite progress has been made, the commander stated, toward one of the organization's major goals, a uniform pension system for all veterans of all wars, based on length and type of service.

Seek Universal Draft.

Other recommendations of the commander, which will be incorporated in resolutions to be considered on the floor of the convention, include continued efforts toward world peace by means of legislation to draft capital and industry on the same basis as man power in the event of war, and the immediate federal control of the manufacture of war munitions; a proposal to bar further immigration until all American citizens are again gainfully employed, requiring the oath of allegiance to the constitution from all public officials, and the deportation of all individuals advocating the overthrow of the present form of American government.

Robbers Seized as They Drag Victim Into Alley

Policemen Dennis Flynn and John Smith of the Central station saw two men dragging Joseph Snyder, 3400 Archer avenue, Summit, into an alley early yesterday near State and Polk streets. They seized the assailants and took them to the station, where one was identified as Jack Casey, alias Ryan, alias Hogan, 55 years old, with a long record of robberies and burglaries. The other is Jack O'Neill, 28 years old, 805 South State street, who also has a police record for larceny.

Mexican Army Flyer Killed in Double Parachute Leap

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Sub-Lieut. Carlos Paulladas fell to his death at the military airport today when he attempted a double parachute jump during Independence day ceremonies. Thirty thousand persons saw the tragedy. The military flyer's first parachute opened but when he attempted to use his second it became tangled in his legs and failed to work.

Morris Rubin, 28 years old, owner of a grocery and meat market at 568 East 51st street, was shot and killed yesterday by Eugene Andrews, 18 years old, 544 East 51st street, colored, in a $5 robbery. The slaying was the result of a burglary plot by Andrews, a former employe of Rubin's, and Edwin McKinney, 21 years old, 654 East 48th street, colored, a clerk in the store. Both confessed the plot. They said they hired Mack Ford, 18 years old, 702 East 43d street, to hide in the rear of the store Saturday night and let them in after Rubin locked up.

When the two got into the store they found that Rubin had padlocked an inside door so they were unable to get to the cash register. Therefore they gave up the burglary plan and left, Andrews saying he would return Sunday and rob Rubin.

Andrews entered the place shortly after Rubin opened the store yesterday and shot the storekeeper three times when he resisted. He fled with $5 taken from Rubin's pockets and met McKinney, telling him of the robbery. McKinney went to the store and gave the alarm, pretending to have discovered the crime.

When it was learned from Edward Hurd, operator of a news stand next door to the store, that McKinney was seen talking to Andrews shortly before the "alarm" was given, McKinney and Andrews were arrested. Ford was taken later with another colored youth, George Hilary, 19 years old, 5025 Forrestville avenue, to whom Andrews gave his weapon.

Rubin, married and the father of a baby girl, lived at 857 East 53d street.

COURTS TO DECIDE ON REBUILDING OF ROAD TO KEY WEST

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 15.—(AP)—The courts will determine whether the storm wrecked overseas railroad between Miami and the little island city of Key West is to be repaired or abandoned.

Scott M. Loftin of Jacksonville, co-receiver of the Florida East Coast railway, which operates the overseas system, said he and the other receiver, William R. Kenan of New York, are "mere agents of the court" and without authority to make the decision.

The overseas railway was called an "eighth wonder" when Henry Flagler built it. It cost $26,000,000 and required seven years and nine months to build. Flagler, in his eighty-second year, rode Jan. 22, 1912, on the first train into Key West.

A complete report of the Labor day hurricane damage to the line across the Florida keys will be filed "very shortly" with United States District Judge Louie W. Strum of Jacksonville, Loftin said.

"Then it will be simply a matter of waiting for instructions from the court," he added.

Delays Too Long; Girl Dies in Parachute Leap

Pocatello, Idaho, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Blenda Townley, 18, Preston, Idaho, was killed here tonight in a leap from an airplane. She was making a delayed parachute jump and delayed opening the chute too long.

SEVERSKY SETS SEAPLANE MARK 230 MI. AN HOUR

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky of Farmingdale, N. Y., bettered the world speed record for amphibian planes by 39 miles an hour at the Wayne county airport today. He drove his 710 horse power craft 230.03 miles an hour over a three kilometer course.

Accompanied by his cocker spaniel Vodka, the former Russian world war flyer easily surpassed the officially recognized mark of 191 miles an hour by Lieut. E. G. Stone of the United States coast guard. "Vodka" rode in the baggage compartment as the low winged monoplane roared over the course on its record breaking dash.

His fastest lap was made at a speed of 235.96 miles an hour. He completed four laps to obtain the average. United States coast guard. Vodka

De Seversky's speed trial here today was the feature of the Michigan air circus.

CRASH OF PLANE HALTS DANCERS; RECOVER 2 BODIES

Michigan Flyer, Sergeant Die in Alleganies.

Beacon, N. Y., Sept. 15.—(AP)—The bodies of two navy flyers were found by CCC workers today in the wreckage of a navy "hell-diver" which crashed last night on the summit of Lamb's hill. The plane had been missing since early last night.

The dead men were Lieut. Lincoln C. Denton of the naval reserve and Mechanic C. Hart, both of Floyd Bennett field, New York.

Called Flyers' "Graveyard."

The territory over which the men were flying when they crashed has been called the "aerial graveyard" because of the flying difficulties it presents in bad weather.

Their plane dropped from sight on the last lap of a flight from Detroit to Floyd Bennett field. About 7 o'clock last night a radio message was received at Albany airport, from which the flyers had taken off at 5:45 p. m., indicating they were lost in a storm or having trouble over Beacon.

Dancers Hear Planes.

At 8 p. m. dancers at a casino high in the hills heard a crash above the wind and rain. Searching parties immediately departed toward a valley known as Hell Hollow, from which the sound had seemed to come.

Lamb's hill is a high point in a ridge of the Alleganies that stretches toward New England. It is 2,000 feet high, and overshadows Beacon reservoir.

Fog and rain hampered the search. The wrecked plane was not found until 9 a. m. today.

Another navy "hell-diver" flown by Lieut. Walter E. Fowler, which had been accompanying Denton's plane, reached Floyd Bennett field safely.

Denton from Michigan.

Lieut. Denton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Denton, reside at Houghton, Mich. A brother-in-law, Eugene B. Hotchkiss of Liberty, N. Y., was one of the searchers and one of the first to reach the scene of the crash.

The search was directed by a friend whom Denton helped to teach to fly, Lieut. Willard Reed Jr. of New York, a marine corps pilot, and by Sergt. William H. Hamlin of the state police.

Denton had a sister, Georgia, residing in Detroit; a brother, John of Jackson, Mich.; a brother, Thomas of Ames, Quebec; a brother, Warner of Albuquerque, N. M., and another brother, K. C. Denton, in New York.

LEGION POST TO ELECT.

The newly organized Commodore Vanderbilt post, No. 789, of the American Legion, made up of New York Central railroad employes, will elect officers at 8 p. m. Friday in the Hotel La Salle.

ALICE ADAMEC, 23, WINS AVIATRICES' TREASURE HUNT

Curtiss-Reynolds airport near Glenview was the scene yesterday of an aerial treasure hunt by twelve Chicago women flyers and of exhibition flying by several male pilots. The event was promoted by the Chicago branch of the Women's National Aeronautical association, the Chicago Girl Flyers' club, and the 99ers.

Miss Alice Adamec, 23 years old, 2119 South 57th court, Cicero, piloting a Travelaire, won the treasure hunt over a 105 mile course. Each ship was handicaped by Art Chester, speed pilot, and the winner was the pilot who come closest to completing the course in her allotted time. Each ship stopped at the Lansing airport for 20 minutes and flew over four other fields at Ashburn, Elmhurst, Pal-Waukee, and Sky Harbor, as well as dipping in salute over the Edward Hines Jr. hospital.

Charles Abel set the first official gliding record with 42 loops after being towed to an altitude of 11,000 feet. It was the first time officials of the National Aeronautical association had checked a glider exhibition. Exhibitions in stunt flying were given by Tex Rankin, Clyde Pangborn, and Art Goebel.

Find Missing Son's Body in Morgue, Slain by Police

George Meyer, 2930 North Sawyer avenue, notified the police yesterday that his son, Edward, 19 years old, had been missing since Saturday evening. Meyer and his wife were taken to the county morgue, where they identified as their son the body of a youth who had been shot and killed by Policeman Ray Delaney when he fled after attempting to seize a young woman at Diversey and Francisco avenues Saturday night. Police said they suspect young Meyer may have been responsible for several such attacks on the north side. A girl of 10 who was raped a week ago near Meyer's home will be asked to look at the body today.

13 BALLOONS OFF IN 23D RACE FOR BENNETT TROPHY

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Daring aerialists of Europe and the United States shot skyward today to start the twenty-third Gordon Bennett international balloon race.

With the American entry, U. S. navy, in second place, the great bags drifted east by northeast toward the Baltic states and Russia before a wind estimated at 45 miles an hour.

The Belgian entry, Bruxelles, took off at 3:30 p. m. [9:30 a. m. Chicago time]. Fifty minutes later the American balloon, glistening in a brilliant sun, soared aloft. There were thirteen entries from many nations. The last balloon was cut loose at 5:20 p. m.

Barred by Czechs.

The weather was excellent, but rain was predicted during the night with fair weather tomorrow. All the racers ascended smoothly. The wind drift toward Russia was considered fortunate, since Czechoslovakia had forbidden contestants to land on her territory.

President Moscicki of Poland, with other dignitaries, saw the balloonists off.

Lieut. Raymond F. Tyler, the United States navy's pilot, was suffering with a cold in his head, but he thought it would not hinder him. Tyler and Lieut. Howard P. Orville, his navigator, carried two baskets of food, including eggs, fruit and a bottle of cognac.

Carry Guns as Precaution.

They also took along two revolvers in case they should land in wild territory. Orville expressed himself as greatly pleased with the organization of the race. The American bag is topped by a white star surrounded by a blue circle and the basket is covered with a silvery cloth.

Last year's race was won by Z. Burnzmacki and J. Zakrzewski of Poland with a 750 mile flight to a point near Riazan, Russia. Orville, who teamed with Lieut. Charles H. Kendall, finished sixth.

ROOSEVELT TIDE IS EBBING FAST, SAYS BRUCKER

Prospects for 1936 Cheer G. O. P. Rally Throng.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Wilber M. Brucker, former governor of Michigan, told a crowd of several thousand at the annual Republican Riverview rally yesterday that the tide of public opinion has turned against the New Deal.

"The Roosevelt New Dealers," he said, "are plainly worried. The administration so overwhelming elected in 1932 has had its imperial hour of triumph only to be confronted now by another rising tide comparable to that which was sweeping the country in 1931."

The outdoor mass meeting was set originally for Labor day. Rain caused two postponements and the size of the crowd around the speaking platform showed the effect. But the 5,000 or so present cheered heartily for the Michigan man, applauded a five minute talk by Col. Frank Knox and howled with delight as Arthur F. Albert, as chairman, employed some rough language in discussing the present regimé at Washington.

The Ages of the New Deal.

Brucker, who is considered a strong candidate for the United States senate, split the history of the New Deal into three periods.

"At first," he said, "the public was eager to accept anything that promised improvement. Then, as it recovered from its panic, there came the second stage of bewilderment and confusion. Later, as our experience accumulated and we had a chance for reflection and an opportunity to test results, there has come a new reaction. In this, the third period, we witness a desire to cast out the whole fantastic mess of theories and return to a basis of life and living which we know to be sound.

Prospects Good for Change.

"In proportion as we are robust and independent thinking Americans, we have progressed through these stages. Those who remain in the first stage are the Roosevelt New Deal idolators. Those who linger in the second stage are the honest doubters who will be aroused by 1936. The number who already have reached the third stage is sufficient evidence that another vast tide of public sentiment is gathering force to sweep these un-American dealers out and to preserve America for Americans."

Col. Knox, who was mentioned by Chairman Albert as a presidential possibility, referred to President Roosevelt in his brief talk as "this blundering gentleman who doesn't understand either taxes or sound money."

G. O. P. ORGANIZES FOR DOWNSTATE PLEDGE ROUNDUP

Aroused by the success of the plan in Chicago, downstaters announced yesterday the formation of a committee to extend to every county in Illinois the campaign to sign up an army of voters pledged to work and vote for the "removal" of President Roosevelt and Gov. Horner from office next year.

Under the direction of Fred Lundin 130,000 signed pledge cards have been obtained in Cook county in the last four months. This work is being carried on by the "reorganization committee of the Republican party of Cook county," with a goal of 500,000 signed cards by the next election day, Nov. 3, 1936.

The expansion of these operations is to be carried on under the name of the "downstate committee to help the Republican party of Illinois."

This group plans to begin active work immediately. Two of its leaders, William J. Stratton of Ingleside, former secretary of state, and State Representative Richard J. Lyons of Mundelein, one of the most vigorous opponents of the Horner dictatorship in the general assembly, will start within a week on a tour through every county in the state.

FEDERAL HELP FOR 1,275 PUPILS AT U. OF ILLINOIS

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—With thousands of freshmen, upper classmen, graduate students registering at the University of Illinois the total enrollment is expected to be about 400 larger than last fall's. Classes open on Wednesday.

Financial help for about 1,275 of the students will be provided by the National Youth Administration program. Of those students 125 will do their work in the professional schools in Chicago. Each of those students will receive not more than an average of $15 a month.

The federal aid appropriation for University of Illinois students is $19,125 per month, compared with the $17,835 a month provided by Federal Emergency Relief administration last year.

CHICAGO BANKER COLLAPSES WHILE AT CONVENTION

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Jan Romaszkiewicz, president of the Polish National alliance, was stricken with a heart attack today amid turbulent scenes prefacing the opening of the organization's quadrennial convention here.

Romaszkiewicz, 64 year old Chicago banker, reportedly was subjected to a verbal lashing by Chester Hibner of Chicago, alliance vice president, during a committee meeting.

The president collapsed and the entire convention, attended by 500 delegates, was thrown into confusion. Physicians asserted the banker's condition was critical.

Officials of the alliance said the incident occurred during a board of directors' meeting, called to consider a controversy which had arisen over the naming of a credentials committee.

In addition to the delegates 1,500 guests have gathered for the session, expected to last more than a week.

2 MEN RESCUED AS THEIR BOAT SINKS IN LAKE

The Quest, a 36 foot sailboat, sank in 30 feet of water near the breakwater off the mouth of the river last evening. Two men who were on board donned life preservers and kept afloat until Art Agra, a speedboat operator from the Michigan avenue dock, picked them up.

According to coast guards, who marked the spot where the boat sank, the crew had allowed the bow to crash into the breakwater at the south side of the entrance. This crash opened a hole in the bow and the vessel filled.

The identity of the men saved was not learned. At the Columbia Yacht club it was said the boat, a ketch, was owned by Jack Holbrook.

Charles Nessler Announces

CHARLES NESSLER, pioneer in modern hair research... In the field of hair biology Charles Nessler has more original work to his credit than any other scientist.

His invention of the permanent wave in 1906 was the beginning of a life-long devotion to the cause of hair. Early in his career, Nessler established numerous connections with scientists and practitioners all over the world to gather material for his books—"The Story of Hair" (277 pages) and "Our Vanishing Hair" (140 pages).

Nessler, for the first time, ascertained and "metered" human hair production and declared hair to be the result of a health urge of the organism to rid itself of surplus protein.

Since 1923 the effect of hair treatments was observed on literally hundreds of heads by means of special devices—one of which, the Kerascope, was demonstrated in 1932 before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Nessler discovered the existence of the "Hair Cycle" and the laws on which it proceeds. He further discovered the principle of "Hair Migration"—a normal sequence to scalp stagnation. Pro-Ker is Nessler's latest achievement.

The END of the BALD ERA

GUARANTEED TREATMENT AGAINST BALDNESS

PRO-KER heralds a new era in the treatment of hair. It completely breaks with an antiquated past of "massage", "tonics", "dandruff cures" or "excessive oiliness" just as permanent waving broke with medieval curling devices, the cause of many nightmares and heavy lines around the eyes in the morning.

THEORY

The Nessler Pro-Ker treatment is based on this scientific principle: That the system is still producing hair substance (Keratin) even though a man may be on the road to common baldness. Nor is dandruff or oiliness the cause of hair falling. Excessive falling hair is simply due to scalp dilation, similar to gum dilation which loosens the healthy teeth of children and adults! This fact has been definitely established. A human scalp of normal strength after the age of twenty can carry hair of three feet in length. And if cut short should not shed any hair at all!

Normally, the scalp should follow the "hair cycle". In other words, hair should grow in, fall out, and be replaced. When short hair begins to fall excessively, it signifies that the tissue of the scalp is weakening. And when such hair is not replaced, then obviously the normal hair cycle is not functioning.

Now first of all, Pro-Ker helps the system re-establish the hair cycle. Secondly, in direct opposition to accepted ideas of what is needed, Pro-Ker strengthens—actually tightens the scalp, by natural means—thus providing better anchorage for its hair.

GUARANTEE OR MONEY REFUNDED

Pro-Ker does not attempt to stop normal hair fall. What it does is help your scalp to replace the hair that falls. Do not rely on promises of remedies to stop your hair from falling. On September 29th, 1933, Pro-Ker Laboratories, in the public's interest, published a large advertisement in the New York Times offering $1000 to anyone who could prove the existence of such a remedy, but not one single challenge came in. The offer is still open.

On the other hand—"440 men and women in 1932 had the density growth of their hair officially recorded before using Pro-Ker and again seven months later. Of these, 64% had a gain of hair, 31% had arrested hair loss, and 5% were lower"! This 5%, however, in most cases admitted personal negligence.

You, too, may have the guarantee (or money refunded) that even though your hair does not stop falling, it nevertheless will not get thinner. Because once Pro-Ker re-establishes the normal hair cycle, your system will replace every hair that falls. "And to judge from lengthy experience, when once your hair cycle has been fully established it persists until late in life with but little attention. No human need get prematurely bold!"

HOW PRO-KER IS USED The application of Pro-Ker is preceded by a few moments of fine-combing to remove all debris and make Pro-Ker absorption possible. That is all. An interesting booklet of how the scalp should be dealt with goes with every bottle. A complete 24-page booklet, "The End of the Bald Era", by Charles Nessler, is sent FREE upon request to Pro-Ker Laboratories, Inc.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

A STEP TOWARD SOUND BANKING.

The intimation that the First National bank of Chicago proposes to retire by repurchase a substantial portion of the preferred stock which it sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation is welcome news. It is welcome as indicating the strong position of the bank and especially as an evidence that the management proposes to make itself independent of the government at the earliest moment possible.

Our government today is violating the first principle of sound finance. Year after year it is spending vastly in excess of its revenues. It has been forced to borrow to meet its colossal deficits. The banks, including the reserve banks, are already overloaded with government paper. Senator Glass is authority for the statement that a 10 point drop in the market for government bonds would wipe out the capital and surplus of most of the banks of the country. Mr. Glass' figure is only an approximation, but the principle upon which he based his estimate is sound.

As business recovers interest rates will stiffen, and as interest rates rise the market price of fixed interest securities will drop. If the public should then become alarmed for the safety of its deposits the results might be appalling. The market could not absorb the offerings of government bonds from the banks and if the banks converted their government paper into cash at the reserve banks we should be menaced by a vast inflation of the currency accompanied by complete illiquidity of reserves.

The first step toward breaking this vicious circle will lie in freeing the commercial and savings banks from treasury domination. Bank managements as quickly as possible should place themselves in a position to deal at arm's length with the treasury. As long as the government is a substantial owner of bank stock it is in a position to dominate bank policy and force the banks to absorb government loans. The power to direct the use of bank funds has not been exerted to the full as yet, but as the strain on the government's credit grows the temptation to rescue the treasury at the expense of the depositors will become irresistible.

The fact that this administration is remarkable for economic illiteracy and financial irresponsibility only heightens the danger and counsels speed in freeing the banks from government influence.

HE KNEW HOW TO SHOOT.

Policeman Samuel McDowell, who on Friday mortally wounded one bandit and drove two others off from an attempted robbery, is to be commended for more than his courage. Courage is essential in the good policeman, and fortunately for the public it is rare that it is found lacking in the Chicago department, but the highest courage would not have availed Policeman McDowell if he had not known how to use his gun.

The policeman is under enough handicaps in facing the outlaw gunman without assuming the further handicap of poor marksmanship. He is under the mental handicap of waiting for the outlaw to declare his intentions and under the physical one of having to exercise care for the safety of innocent bystanders, which do not trouble the gangster.

Even when he recognized a holdup, Policeman McDowell was unable to fire immediately for fear of hitting the young woman he was guarding. By the time he had an opportunity to fire he was gravely wounded himself. Yet under these conditions he sent four bullets into the body of one of his assailants and apparently winged a second one. Nothing but familiarity with his weapon and good marksmanship could have overcome the handicaps which he faced.

This is the soundest ground for objection to the indiscriminate arming of public employés merely because they have the legal right to bear arms. A revolver is at best a difficult weapon, and unless the man who carries it is familiar with it and is frequently drilled in marksmanship it is not a protection, but a menace both to the public and himself.

SELL A BOND AND BUY A PORK CHOP.

Thrifty Milwaukee housewives, seeing the price of a pork chop double in two years and a slice of bacon become an unattainable luxury, seek in their bewilderment to force down prices by calling a strike against the retail meat dealers. It is a natural but false reaction for the first impulse of their wrath to be directed against the retailer. He is the one who used to wrap up the chops in the days when they could afford to buy them, and to them he represents the source of supplies. There is justification for women's display of indignation, but it is altogether misdirected when it seeks to find relief from the hands of the corner market man.

The current prices are the inevitable consequence of the federal government's interference with the natural laws for the production and marketing of a basic food. They follow as a direct result of the AAA slaughter of pigs and the government destruction of much needed food. The mother of a household who is asked to pay 35 cents a pound for pork chops from an income no larger than it was in 1933 is paying directly for the farm votes which the administration hopes to garner through a tax on the food of urban consumers large and small, a tax imposed on every kitchen in the country. Housewives are paying it with every pound of bacon and with every dish of ham and eggs.

America always has boasted it was a land where meat could be and was served daily on the tables of the humblest workers. The standard of meat once a week has come from other lands and other times. Under Franklin Roosevelt the United States is becoming a land of meatless days not alone in the humblest but in the average home.

The Socialist party in Milwaukee, which recognizes the Roosevelt procedure as good socialist doctrin, has tried to allay the embattled women by diverting their attention to the meat packers. The meat packers are no more at fault than the butcher in the smallest corner store. The kitchen budgets of every household in the land are paying for the administration's farm program. They will continue to pay.

FLYER HUGHES' RECORD.

There is a deeper significance in the 352 mile an hour flight of Howard Hughes than the fact that it has brought to the United States the speed record for land planes. Hughes is typical of the individual initiative which has characterized American aviation and which accounts for its superiority over the government fostered industry of Europe.

Lindbergh's flight to Paris, which marked the opening of the modern era in aviation, was a product of private enterprise. The work of the lamented Wiley Post, whose stratosphere flights laid the groundwork for the next great leap forward in aviation, was individualistic to the extent that Post suffered severely from that handicap of meager finances which is so often the penalty of scientific pioneering.

No more striking example of the advantages of private initiative can be found than in the embarrassment of military authorities over their newest bombers. The defense against the bomber is the light pursuit plane, which can outmaneuver it through superior speed. But the new bombers, developed by designers who serve the air transport lines, are faster than the pursuit planes, largely developed on government specifications, which were expected to outspeed them. Now another individualist, Hughes, appears to have restored the balance and relieved the army's embarrassment.

The lesson is clear. If the American government wishes to maintain and advance our present superiority in aviation let it keep hands off private enterprise in the field, which has put us in our present position.

NEARING THE GOAL.

In the year 1931 THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE inaugurated its campaign for faster railway passenger service. At that time the Century and Broadway, crack Chicago-New York trains of the New York Central and Pennsylvania, were being operated on twenty hour schedules. Bit by bit the running time has been reduced until we now receive an announcement that effective Sept. 29 the service offered will be sixteen and one-half hours.

THE TRIBUNE has consistently maintained that these railways must eventually establish overnight service—fifteen hours as a maximum. This would have required a reduction of five hours from the original twenty hour schedule. Seventy per cent of the difference has been bridged. The railways have moved steadily, if not spectacularly, in the right direction and deserve the commendation and wholehearted support of the public.

Indeed, with Chicago and New York in different time zones, the west bound runs will virtually reach the objective. Departure from New York at 5:30 p. m. to arrive at Chicago at 9 o'clock the following morning offers most of the advantages of overnight service.

Editorial of the Day

INCOMES MAKE SLUMS.

[Detroit News.]

We are in favor of Detroit's slum clearance project. We are in favor of more and better slum clearance. And we are in favor of Mrs. Roosevelt.

But every time we hear, as in her address, of the crime and disease waiting to be eliminated by the tearing down of a group of elderly dwellings where people are living under conditions of overcongestion and consequent undersanitation we are moved to protest. This whole subject is badly in need of a breath of fresh realism.

The old houses do not cause either crime or disease. Some of them are the homes and former homes of Detroiters who grew to manhood and womanhood there without ever running afoul of the law or catching anything worse than a case of mumps.

What causes the crime and disease are the things that make people live in those old houses in a manner conducive to crime and disease. The chief of those things is low income and an enforced low standard of living. Remove the basic cause for the slum and the slum will disappear of its own accord either by the voluntary removal of its inhabitants to better and more attractive quarters or by the redemption and modernization of the slum houses themselves.

We favor, as we say, the present slum clearance project and slum clearance in general. It will do some good. But if some one were given the resources, which would have to be considerable, to clear away all of the existing "slum areas" in the city of Detroit there still would be slums and the evil conditions that grow out of them.

That would have to be true unless the incomes of the slum dwellers could be increased enough to allow them to live better than they do, or unless the new quarters to be erected on the slum sites could be made cheap enough to fit the meager and precarious resources of those who now live there.

And the latter goal, judging by bitter experience with the present project, is no more easily achieved than the former.

NOT ENOUGH TO MATTER.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

I WAS TELLING in one of last week's Lines how pleased I was that an American sailor had been arrested by the Nazis in Germany for telling what he thought of Herr Hitler. Not that I was pleased by the gob's being landed in the hoosegow, but because I knew that when sailors speak their mind about anything or anybody they make a thoroughly good job of it. Some of them have a most fiery sort of utterance that nobody else can approach. All of which is leading up to the story I heard on an American warship off Borneo years ago. An American missionary had been lost for days in the brush in one of the wildest regions of Borneo. He was half-starved and feared that if he didn't get help in a short time he would perish. Just then he heard the sound of voices from a thick clump of bushes ahead of him. The voices were those of American sailors engaged in a friendly game of poker, but of course the missionary didn't know that at first and so he slipped up very quietly, fearing the voices came from savages, perhaps cannibals. But as he neared the clump of bushes the missionary heard one voice sing out triumphantly, "There! Beat four blank, blank, blanks you blankety, blank, blanks." "Ah," said the missionary, bursting into thankful tears, "Christians again!"

THE STARS WILL SHINE UNSHAKEN.

The sun to west returning,
A thousand eyes of night
Dim in the east are burning
And crowd the lessening light.

Now somewhere hearts are flattered
Where star-charmed lovers fare,
For starlight vows have shattered
The shadowy silence there:

And somewhere hearts are broken
For love that would not wait,
For words that went unspoken
Till words were all too late.

But none of them will waken
To guard or trade a vow,
And the stars will shine unshaken
A hundred years from now.

PYGMALION.

"I'M A BOONDOGGLER by profession," said a seedy looking man who braced me for a dime in Rush street yesterday. "Then," said I sternly, "why are you asking me for a dime?" "That's my work as a boondoggler," said he. "I have to count the letters on dimes, but of course I have to get the dimes first or I can't boondoggle." Well, anyhow, it was something different from the usual plea for a dime to buy a cuppa Mokie and Javvie, so I gave him two dimes.

THOSE PEOPLE WHO AREN'T amateur photographers probably regard the camera world as the most peaceful, calm, and gentle land that could possibly be imagined. In your ignorance you would class an amateur photographer along with bug collectors and people who walk around under the trees with their eyes first fixed on a bird up in the branches and then on the big book they lug around and who say, "Yes, that is a whoodle-dinged whippoorwill, because he has seven feathers in his cute little tail." But once across the threshold into camera land and you find that very few are on speaking terms with the rest of the brotherhood. A pictorialist who scrapes the back of his films and paints things in with a bromoil brush is regarded by the straight or purist photographers as an enemy to the human race and lacking in every virtue. And what the pictorialists think of the purists, tsk, tsk, tsk! Goodness, the horrible stony gaze a pictorialist turns on a purist would simply freeze the blood—except the blood of the purist. Now me, I'm a newcomer in the camera world and I'm not taking sides; I'm neutral. However, if a pictorialist ever speaks to me I'm going to have him arrested.

MAYBE IT'S BECAUSE we read so many detective stories in which we suspect the janitor in the first chapter and then the jealous suitor, only to find out on the last page that it was the jolly, rich old auntie who did the dirty deed, that we have so many murders, suicides, and assassinations nowadays. Or maybe it's watching the G Men in the movies and the occasional bumping off of people in the so-called comic strips in the newspapers that get us all het up. Something's wrong. We really ought to have a law against murder in this country. Write to your congressman today.

FORTY-ODD FABLES.

I.

She was bound and she prayed for release
From duties, from family, from friends.
It was leisure she wanted, and peace
To use for her own selfish ends.

They presently vanished—each tie—
And she found herself suddenly free;
Then the hours dragged wearily by—
There was nowhere she wanted to be.

There was nothing she wanted to do!
Although she had freedom at last
She spent all her time being blue
And dreaming about her dear past!

The moral to this, I would state
(For those who believe morals matter),
Is: "Take care what you're wishing, or Fate
May hand you your wish on a platter!"

BEE STINGS.

BEE stings affect people differently. In many cases the sting of a common honey bee is as severe in its general effects as a crushing injury involving the fracture of an important bone and the tearing of muscles. Many victims describe the earliest symptoms as similar to those of shock; that is, the pulse is weak and feeble, the blood pressure falls rapidly, and the face and extremities become blanched and cold.

We now know that bee venom is not only a local irritant, but it has a powerful effect on the body as a whole; in other words, it acts as a virulent poison, and the symptoms resemble those of snake bite. There are pain and swelling in the part injured, followed by a diffuse perspiration, dizziness, headache, nausea, and a feeling of contraction in the throat. Sometimes convulsions and unconsciousness ensue. After two or three days the symptoms subside, but weakness usually persists for many days thereafter.

A physician who suffered a distressing experience a few months ago relates that he was first stung by a bee some time in March and the shock [collapse] lasted about 24 hours. He was stung a second time in May and was unconscious for 8 hours. Two weeks later he was again a victim and was deeply comatose for over 12 hours. On each occasion several days were required for convalescence.

There are each year a score or more of deaths from bee stings in the United States, and the explanation is either shock to the nervous system or the rapid absorption of venom that acts quickly upon the heart and the breathing mechanism of the body. It is, of course, entirely possible that the sting of the insect may penetrate a tiny capillary and the poison be injected directly into the circulation.

No case of bee sting should be regarded with indifference. An immediate effort should be made to remove the sting, not by means of forceps or finger nails but by lifting or scraping out the barb with the blade of a knife. Any attempt to grasp the sting between the fingers and thus remove it will squeeze more poison into the wound. The best type of local application is ammonia. A bit of gauze or a handkerchief soaked in the solution may be placed over the injured area. Soft soap is also of value, while hot applications are useful in relieving pain. If symptoms of collapse are present they must be combated promptly. A physician should be summoned, who may inject adrenalin hypodermically. Should he be delayed or not available the patient must be kept warm and given strong coffee to drink. A teaspoonful of aromatic ammonia diluted with warm water is helpful.

Those who work with bees and are accustomed to their stings sometimes develop an allergy [sensitivity] to the venom. The case is related of a beekeeper who was seriously ill following each attack. A successful plan of treatment was adopted—namely, vaccinating the patient with bee venom. After some twenty injections he was able to withstand twenty-five or more stings with only local and temporary discomfort.

We are beginning to understand the reason for the employment of certain remedies by the older physicians, and there can be no doubt but that many were successful. When we read that Charlemagne was miraculously cured of the gout following a bee sting we realize that the poison served as a stimulant to the reserve powers of the body and thus aided in overcoming the infection. In other words, when injected into the circulation the venom acted as a foreign protein. Modern physicians frequently use proteins of various types to bring forth latent protective forces. Older medical literature abounds with references to the use of bee venom for the cure of rheumatism. In some clinics today this substance is employed in the treatment of arthritis, chronic rheumatism, long standing neuritis, and certain other conditions requiring extra effort on the part of the defenses of the body.

USE OF PITUITRIN.

H. A. P. writes: Kindly state if the use of pituitrin is advisable in normal obstetrical cases, and if any bad effects are likely to follow.

REPLY.

An extract of the pituitary gland [pituitrin] is used by obstetricians in good standing to stimulate contractions of the uterus. It has a powerful effect on smooth muscle. In normal cases it is rarely required. If the contractions are retarded and if there is no obstruction to the passage of the child, it may be used in proper dosage with safety. There are no reported bad effects from its use.

MASSAGE IS HELPFUL.

C. D. T. writes: Recently E. Z. W. wrote of a young woman who had had no instructions from her physician as to after care of a thyroidectomy scar. I am recovering from a similar operation. I was advised that as soon as the wound heals it should be massaged with cocoa butter, which aids in filling out and softening the tissues.

REPLY.

Massage is helpful and is the thing that counts. The cocoa butter serves as an excellent skin lubricant.

SLEEPING POSTURE.

M. H. R. writes: A friend has the habit of sleeping with a pillow under her stomach. Could this be detrimental in any way? She has been told that it will cause a fallen stomach.

REPLY.

During sleep the individual unconsciously assumes the most comfortable posture. You would be surprised if you could take a movie of a perfectly normal person during the eight or nine sleeping hours. Every one twists and turns many times. If a pillow or a footstool is comfortable, use it.

TRANSFER OF MORTGAGE.

Arlington Heights, Ill., Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please send me information regarding transfer of mortgages—whether it is a [1] transferable piece of property only in Cook county without looking it up as to the ownership and permission. A director of a bank through a hazy method got a mortgage from my brother in order to collect interest and principal. 2. He sold it to the bank the next day without permission, receiving $4,500 cash and $3,000 credit to his account. 3. He gave my brother a receipt which read to the effect "to be accounted for." 4. We sued the bank and appealed the case before the same judge and lost both cases. 5. If a man has a mortgage, as in this case, has he the right to sell it or has the bank the right to buy it without investigating the ownership and permission? G. B.

1. We do not understand why you place this wording in quotation marks. If the mortgage papers are in the form that is usual here they are payable to bearer and can pass from hand to hand substantially like money.

2. It seems possible that the facts might be such as to charge the bank with constructive notice.

3. This might tend to indicate that your brother acquiesced.

4. Presumably you have employed an attorney in these cases, and, if so, he is in a better position to advise you than we are.

5. A purchaser would be entitled to assume in the ordinary case that the party in possession of a negotiable paper was the owner when the paper was payable to bearer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONTRACT OF SALE.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I purchased a monument eight months ago for $275, paying $75 down and $10 a week. I still owe a balance of $150. My husband is working only two days a week and I can't pay the $10. Can the dealer take the monument from me if I only pay him $5 a week instead of $10? My aunt said that he can take it and another party said if I am paying that much he can't take it from me. M. L.

If the contract of sale placed the title in you with no mortgage or other reservation to protect the seller, then he could not resume possession without court proceedings. In any event, no payment of less than the full amount due will increase your legal protection. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CLEAR TITLE.

Oregon, Ill., Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the only heir to some land in Nebraska. My parents left no wills. Father's estate was administered here, however, not mother's, who died later. Nothing was done regarding transfer of name on record of Nebraska land now in father's name. How can I have it recorded in my name without expense of administration in that state? O. B. J.

The only way to produce a technically clear title would be by probate proceedings, assuming that the property belonged to your mother. If much time has elapsed you may be able to induce future purchasers to waive probate. We suggest that you go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

AUCTION OF GOODS.

Macomb, Ill., Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have some household goods stored in Chicago and contemplate selling same at auction in a vacant lot. 1. Would this be in violation of city ordinances? 2. Would I be required to secure a permit? 3. Would I be required to engage a Chicago licensed auctioneer? H. C.

1, 2 and 3. Yes, under the terms of chapter 65 of the Chicago code. We are not in a position to say how rigidly this is enforced where the auction is conducted by the owner of the goods and not in the course of repeating transactions, but clearly you are subject to the literal wording of the statute. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Because sewer gas has a bad odor, many people believe that typhoid fever and many other diseases may be contracted by breathing it. The truth is that this gas is not responsible for any diseases, for disease germs which are found in sewage are not carried through the air. The bad odor is the result of putrefaction in the sewage, and this process helps purify the sewage.

ABOUT GLADIOLI.

Warrenville, Ill., Sept. 12.—I noted in a recent issue that your garden editor in response to a query about gladioli not blooming this season said that the cause was the weather—rainy weather followed by hot weather. As a gladioli grower I scout that idea. I have over 3,000 this year and although they have been blooming for several weeks, there is no trouble of any kind. I find that other growers say that the trouble is gladioli thrips, an insect trouble; so blame the thrips, not the weather. I think that glads will come through and endure more kinds of bad weather than almost any other flower.

Then I note that in your paper frequent reference is made to the time when Jack Frost will come and color the leaves. I believe that the most beautiful leaf colorings we had in this section were a few years ago before any frost appeared. We had all the colors imaginable, and in no case was Jack Frost a factor. H. H. B.

ENGLISH PROPAGANDA.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Our government should send a protest to England as well as to Russia. Our press, radio, and pictures are flooded with British propaganda.

Had we joined the league of nations we would be at war now up to the hilt, for England just needs our men and money to guard British interests in the east. It is England's business to look after such interests, not ours. Our government has plenty to do right here in the U. S. A.

Should Mussolini unjustly invade Ethiopia he would only follow Britain's example. All her wars were wars of aggression. When she found there were diamonds in the Transvaal she invaded that country and fought a bitter war of aggression against the Boers in their own country. English propaganda got us into the world war [which was fought to end all wars, by the way], and she charged us plenty for transporting our troops across.

She has defaulted in the payment of her just debt to us, and yet she is allowed to strew our papers with British propaganda. MRS. PHILIP DOYLE.

NIGHT QUACKERS.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Does any one know anything about the quacking noise heard in the woods along the Skokie Valley road? It is only heard at night and resembles the quacking of a duck more than anything. There seem to be hundreds of these creatures in the trees in that section. Is it a bird, a frog, or a toad? E. H.

STRAWS.

Winnetka, Ill., Sept. 13.—Today in Milwaukee I had occasion to use taxis several times. Each time the taxi driver started the conversation. Each had voted for President Roosevelt. Each would not vote for him again. Cost of living too high. Work too slow.

IRVING M. TUTEUR.

A HATER OF HOMONYMS.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 5.—Some words of uncommon usage masquerade in the spelling, or the sound, or the appearance of words of common and frequent usage, and when I run across them in their masquerade they make me see red. Sometimes authors haven't any choice but to let them appear in false whiskers; at other times writers drag 'em in just to be fancy and give a false air of realism to their yarns.

Now, everybody knows who and what a painter is; he is a fellow who paints and that ought to be all there is to it. But no! Every writer of sea yarns has to befuddle the unsuspecting reader by referring to the painter in connection with a ship's small boat so often that it begins to seem that some one does nothing on a ship but decorate the boats. Finally it dawns on the betrayed intelligence that the author is referring to the rope which fastens the boat to the ship when the boat is in tow. A rope, of all things!

Similarly a navy is a navy and one is proud of his country's, but such high sentiments get a severe jolt when a nasty little word looking like a misspelling creeps into some of the English yarns in connection with chores which no navy could possibly be thought of as doing, and one finally wakes up to the fact that a navvy is some kind of human workman who is masquerading in this inhuman word.

And what is a quarry? A place where you get out stone? Not on your life if it's in a detective story. It's some one the detective is following. Imagine that! And one of my most active disgusts arises when I'm taken in by the word sleeper. I know very well what a sleeper is, or who he is, for sometimes it is a person who sleeps and sometimes it is a sleeping car, and Lord knows that's stretching its utility far enough, even if we're never in doubt which is meant in a given statement, but I never complain if it's kept in those well accepted connotations. But I gripe to beat hades to be stood up for an idiot and told with a knowing smirk that it also is a railroad tie made of wood placed under the rails. P. H. DOREMUS.

A BEAR.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The Federal Housing administration says: "Now is the time to build." The Chicago Real Estate board says: "Now is the time to buy real estate."

A careful analysis of existing facts shows that building under present conditions is not profitable. Here are a few of the reasons: First, the plumbers recently raised their pay from $11 to $12 per day. Second, real estate taxes for 1934 will be 10 per cent higher than 1933. Third, a 10 per cent increase in lumber is due Oct. 1. And fourth, the price of coal will be stepped up approximately $1.50 per ton about Nov. 1.

CAUSE OF DEATH OF EVELYN HOEY BACK TO SUICIDE

Detective Reverts to His Original Theory.

Westchester, Pa., Sept. 15.—County Detective Francis Grubb who drew dark inferences yesterday from the fact that the only fingerprints on the revolver that killed Miss Evelyn Hoey last Wednesday night at the summer home of Henry Huddleson Rogers III., in Lyndell, near here, were her own, reverted tonight to his original theory on the case.

"I am convinced now, beyond a doubt," he said, this evening, "that it was a suicide, in spite of the fingerprint report."

The report, made by Charles Dunlap of the Chester police department, puzzled Mr. Grubb yesterday. The detective pointed out then that there were no fingerprints on the weapon of George Yamada, Rogers' Japanese cook, and young McArdell, a farmer boy, who had handled the revolver the morning of the shooting.

Motive Proves Mystery.

"Even Miss Hoey's father," he said, in support of his latest stand, "is convinced that she took her own life, though he told me he could not think of any motive or reason for it.

The body of the musical comedy star was still in Keim & Wilson's morgue in Downingtown tonight. The burial is to take place in St. Louis.

Henry J. Hoey, the father, telephoned for a blanket of violets for the casket today, but there are not enough violets here for the purpose. The floral piece that will rest on the casket as it is borne westward will be a seven foot double spray ordered by young Rogers.

There was to have been a conference today between Rogers and his attorneys in Wernersville, Pa., but it was called off. Rogers, his mother, and their party checked out of their hotel and left by a rear entrance. Their destination was not known.

Inquest Set for Thursday.

Coroner Harvey Cox of Malvern said tonight that the inquest into Miss Hoey's death will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the courthouse here.

"There are six men on the coroner's jury," he explained, "and the session is virtually the same thing as a hearing before a city magistrate. The jurors have already seen Miss Hoey's body. At the inquest they will listen to all the witnesses and then decide whether there is enough evidence to hold any one for court trial.

Young Rogers and William Kelly, a free lance motion picture operator who lives in Union City, N. J., are free under $2,500 bail each on a coroner's commitment based on "suspicion of murder." They are to appear at the inquest.

"There is no charge against the men," Coroner Cox explained.

CHILD KILLED BY BUS.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

LITHUANIA WILL FIGHT TO HOLD MEMEL: SMETONA

President Insists Nation Needs Territory.

PALANGA, Lithuania, Sept. 15.—(AP)—President Antanas Smetona, in the first interview he has granted in six years, declared today that Lithuania, relying to the utmost on the legality and justice of her stand and action in Memel affairs, is ready at any time to defend her position before the permanent court of international justice.

But should an effort be made to disregard legality and justice, in favor stated President Smetona, to "defend of force, Lithuania is prepared, Memel with all the means at her command."

He regards as Lithuania's chief problem in Memel today the action of Germany in practically stopping all imports from Lithuania with "resultant economic pressure" and what he terms the "relentless influence of foreign propaganda." He blamed such propaganda for much of the apparent confusion.

Pledges Free Vote.

"The Memel citizen, confronted by the propaganda forces of a large and powerful nation, cannot help but be bewildered," Smetona said. "What constitutes a minority opinion in such circumstances becomes a difficult question to answer.

"The Memel general elections will take place on Sept. 29 and the government of the republic guarantees that they will take place in full liberty as they have in the past. Any changes which the government might eventually consider necessary in the present election procedure would, without any doubt, be made in full conformity with the Memel statute.

Calls Memel Economic Need.

"Memel territory is not large. Memel is to us an economic necessity, not a political issue. We are too small a nation to engage in political bargaining, as we are too small a country to engage in contra-propaganda. Our only point is that Memel, containing Lithuania's only seaport, is an essential part of Lithuania. And the freedom and preservation of Lithuania is to her people a precious thing."

OPEN QUIZ HERE TODAY ON 'GIANT REALTY RACKET'

A committee of the house of representatives, headed by Congressman Adolph J. Sabath [Ill., 5th], will start hearings today in the United States courthouse in an investigation of receiverships, trusteeships, and bondholders' committees handling real estate.

Mr. Sabath said that a few hearings were held in other cities about a year ago, but that these were discontinued because the committee members had to remain in Washington. He added, however, that investigators had gathered a great mass of material in the meanwhile and that the work would now proceed rapidly. J. L. Tupy is in charge of the local office of the committee and has been aided by 40 attorneys who are serving without pay. A giant "realty racket" will be disclosed, he said.

"We are trying to find out why bondholders' committees can't be eliminated, why properties are mismanaged, and who gets big fees," said Mr. Sabath. "We know now of 11,000 buildings, valued at two billion dollars, which are in receivership and from which the bondholders haven't gotten a dollar."

Besides Mr. Sabath, the representatives on the committee are Claude A. Fuller of Arkansas, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Thomas O'Malley of Wisconsin, and Martin J. Kennedy of New York.

Crop Show in Loop

September 15, 1935.

AN exhibit of crops and other products grown on the Tribune Experimental farm near Wheaton this year are now on display at THE TRIBUNE'S loop office, 1 South Dearborn street. Five big windows are filled with sixteen different kinds of crops, including rare plants grown in this region for the first time.

The collection of interesting exhibits includes an abandoned Muscovy duck nest. The nest has ten Muscovy duck eggs snugly tucked in the downy lining just as the old duck left them.

Samples of that ham and bacon, cured Virginia style at the farm last winter, are causing loop strollers' mouths to water as they pass THE TRIBUNE office window.

About thirty different kinds of canned vegetables, meats, and fruits, including jams and jellies preserved at the Wheaton farm this summer are in the display. There is a sample jar of wild grape jelly from Mrs. Louis Thurow Sr.'s groaning cellar shelves of the "old Aunt Mary" sort.

The crop exhibit includes specimens of most plants grown in the test plots at the Wheaton farm—pyrethrum grown from rare seeds imported last winter from Persia and Japan, three different kinds of lespedeza, a leguminous crop; cotton produced several hundred miles north of the northern edge of the cotton belt, displaying both blossoms and bolls; hemp, flax, and orotalaria fiber crops, hops, safflower, sudan grass, hybrid corn, atlas sorgo, tobacco, Spanish peanuts, cow peas, soy beans, alfalfa. Labels identify all.

The exhibit will be kept in the window all this week.

All of the 426 steers on the Tribune Experimental farm near Yorkville and Plano are "taking to corn silage like a duck to a dough pile," says Clarence Thurow, farm manager. Today the steers were given the last load of old silage which was stored in a silo over winter. Tomorrow the steers will be started on green corn. The corn will be brought in fresh from the field, run through a silage cutter and fed to the steers in bunks or troughs. The steers are all running in pastures.

Two new corn binders recently brought to the farm will be used in cutting the corn for the steers and for silage this fall. In getting green corn for the steers the edges of the fields are being trimmed up first, before any rows are cut across the field.

Four calves—two bulls and two hefers—have been born in the herd of pure bred Aberdeen-Angus hefers mated with Silver Victor R. in a cross to produce blue gray beef animals at the Yorkville farm.

LANDSLIDE VOTE FOR QUEZON SEEN IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A salvo of predictions that Manuel Quezon would be elected first president of the Philippine commonwealth next Tuesday marked campaign rallies here tonight.

A typhoon which had threatened serious weather effects on the balloting finally blew out toward the China sea, leaving two known dead and transportation damage in four provinces.

Partisans of Quezon, who is president of the insular senate, asserted he would receive 75 per cent of the 1,500,000 votes expected to be cast.

Despite the predictions of the Quezonistas, the other two candidates Emilio Aguinaldo and Bishop Gregorio Aglipay, reiterated their confidence of victory.

Protests that the powerful coalition behind Quezon was planning election frauds caused Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy to write both Aguinaldo and Aglipay promising the full strength of the present government would be used, if necessary, to assure a clean election.

"Camels don't get your Wind"

FAMOUS GOLFERS SAY

CRAIG WOOD (right)—Tommy Armour—Helen Hicks—Gene Sarazen—Bill Mehlhorn—Denny Shute—Willie Macfarlane!

Their names sound a roll call of tense moments that have made golfing history, when prime "condition" and healthy nerves were at a premium. All are outspoken in their preference for Camels.

"Camels are so smooth and mild they never affect my wind," says Craig Wood, pictured at the right as he paused to smoke a Camel. Willie Macfarlane adds: "Camels are mild. They don't get my wind." Miss Helen Hicks brings up the feminine viewpoint. "There's a delicacy of flavor in Camels that appeals to women. Camels never interfere with one's wind." And Denny Shute says: "I switched to Camels years ago. I smoke them constantly, without upsetting my nerves or disturbing my wind."

You'll Like Their Mildness Too!

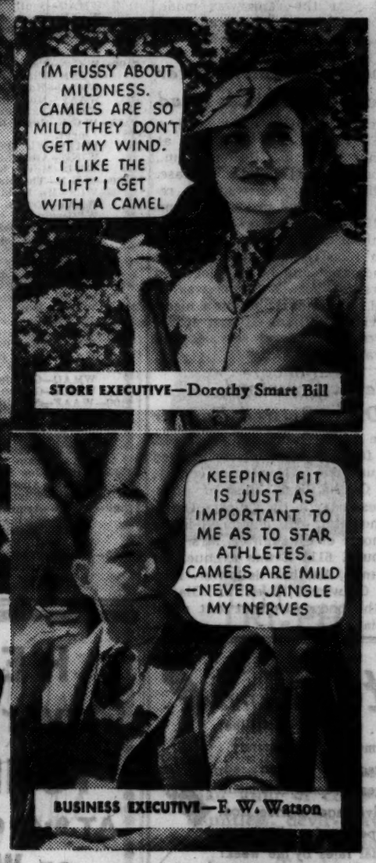
Such experiences with Camels can be matched right among your own friends. You'll like Camels too. Camels are made from costlier tobaccos. They never tire your taste.

SARAZEN. "It's a very important point to me as a steady smoker that Camels are milder," reports Gene. "They never get my wind or upset my nerves."

ARMOUR. "I've smoked Camels for years," Tommy says. "Camels never bother my nerves or my wind—convincing evidence that they are mild."

MEHLHORN. Bill comments: "I smoke Camels steadily. From years of experience, I know that they won't get my wind or jangle my nerves."

SO MILD! YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT



I'M FUSSY ABOUT MILDNESS. CAMELS ARE SO MILD THEY DON'T GET MY WIND. I LIKE THE 'LIFT' I GET WITH A CAMEL

MICHIGAN GETS BIG HARVESTS TOURISTS, FRUIT

Returning Motorists Fill Cars with Produce.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Traverse City, Mich., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Michigan, all up the east coast of the lake from the Chicago metropolitan area, this week-end, is coördinating the harvest of two of the state's leading money producers, tourists and fruit.

Farmers' front yards on the main highways are stacked with crates, baskets, and boxes of grapes, apples, pears, and plums from bountiful vineyards and orchards. Southbound automobiles with Illinois plates and Chicago windshield stickers are carrying the fruit on running boards and bumpers and in tonneaus.

Bulk Moves in Trucks.

The bulk of the harvest from trees and vines, of course, is traveling by truck on week days to commission merchants. And the mass of recreational trafic is not attracted by the fruit. However, although the selling from farm stands to passing motorists is secondary in both agriculture and the tourist business, it is a material contribution to the prosperity of both.

From surveys made in previous years by the United States bureau of public roads, Michigan's receipts from vacationists and motor excursionists in the season just closing may be approximated at a quarter of a billion dollars.

That compares well with the value of farm products, with fruit as a main factor.

Neither the fruits of the road stands nor the total expenditures of the out-of-state visitors who patronize them will make much of a dent in a quarter of a billion dollars. However, hundreds of these grower-merchants, on the 400 miles here from Chicago in THE TRIBUNE roadster, were seen to be doing an active business yesterday and today.

Fine Season for Growers.

The orchards and vineyards, it may be seen from a passing automobile, are heavily laden. Boughs of purple plums and red apples are propped to prevent them from breaking under their loads. The quality, according to Frank Ridgway, farm editor of THE TRIBUNE, is the best.

The prices are cheaper than at a neighborhood store in Chicago, but not as much lower as a bargain hunter might expect. If the cost of gasoline is charged to the expense of a few baskets of fruit bought on a trip from Chicago to Michigan, it's cheaper to buy from a city grocer.

The roadside buyers, however, don't figure that way. If they weren't bringing home fruit, they would be burning gasoline, anyway, just for recreation. So Chicago housewives skilful in kitchens, with husband appreciative of this skill, directed their pleasure drives to Michigan this week-end.

Col. Percy M. Kessler, Head of Fort Hancock Post, Dies

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Col. Percy M. Kessler, 63, commanding officer of the United States army post at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, died of cerebral hemorrhage at the post tonight. A native of Indiana, Col. Kessler entered West Point in 1892 and was graduated from the military academy four years later. Soon after the entrance of the United States into the world war he received a temporary colonelcy, which he retained until the summer of 1919. The next year the rank was made permanent. That year he graduated from the army war college.

Herschell Williams, Writer of Juvenile Fiction, Is Dead

Herschell Williams, author and a former Chicagoan, died Saturday at his summer home in Clinton, Conn., after a brief illness of heart disease. Mr. Williams was a newspaper reporter in Denver and in Detroit from 1897 to 1903, but gave up his career in journalism to write fiction for juveniles. In recent years his work had been syndicated and he had lectured on the radio. Mr. Williams was 63 years old. He is survived by a niece, Miss Miriam Williams-Stuart, 1527½ Lunt avenue. Funeral services will be held at Clinton.

CHAS. H. RAVELL DIES; AUTHOR OF BANKING TEXTS

CHAS. H. RAVELL.

Charles H. Ravell, 61 years old, for nearly forty years a financial advertising representative here for several newspapers, died suddenly yesterday in his home at 4511 Woodlawn avenue. Mr. Ravell had represented the New York Times, Philadelphia Public Ledger, and Wall Street Journal, and at the time of his death was financial advertising representative for the New York Sun and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Born in Lyons, N. Y., Mr. Ravell came to Chicago in 1897 as an employé of the old Record-Herald. He was an authority on banking, being the author of two books on banking in Chicago and Michigan. He also served as western advertising manager of the American Bankers' Association Journal.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home. Burial arrangements will be made after the arrival of a sister, Mrs. F. D. R. Lothrop, from St. Petersburg, Fla. She and the widow, Mrs. Emily Ravell, survive.

DAUGHTER FINDS MOTHER SHE HAD GIVEN UP AS DEAD

For the first time yesterday since she was 2 years old, Mrs. Jeanne Michnick, 40 years old, 961 Edgecomb place, met her mother, who she had not known was alive until last Saturday. Mrs. Michnick also learned that she and her mother, Mrs. Julia Sederstrom Hofelt, 1636 West Monroe street, had been living all that time within a few miles of each other in Chicago and the suburbs.

Mrs. Hofelt, then Mrs. Sederstrom, was forced by financial reasons thirty-eight years ago to leave her baby Jeanne with friends who later placed her in the Park Ridge Home for Girls. Five years later her mother began a search for Jeanne, but could find no trace of her. After leaving the home to obtain employment Jeanne tried for many years to find her mother. A few weeks ago she discovered some relatives and through them traced her mother, who is now living with Mrs. Laura Millhorn, 22 years old, her daughter by a second marriage.

In addition to finding her mother, Mrs. Michnick learned she has a half-sister, Mrs. Millhorn, and a half-brother, Daniel McKee of Hollywood, Cal.

Mrs. Bessie Silver, Wife of Chief Orthodox Rabbi, Dies

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Bessie Silver, 51, wife of Rabbi Eliezer Silver, chief orthodox rabbi of Cincinnati and honorary president of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States, died tonight in a hospital after a brief illness. Besides her husband, she leaves four children, including Rabbi David L. Silver of Harrisburg, Pa.

OPTIMISM MARKS STAF AS SCHOOLS BEGIN NEW TERM

Open Today; Plenty of Books and Pay.

Four hundred and seventy-six thousand Chicago children are expected to return to classes when the public schools reopen this morning, according to estimates made by Supt. William J. Bogan. Mr. Bogan said the figure is 2,000 higher than the registration of last September and shows a normal increase. He expects 342,000 to enroll in the elementary grades, 129,000 in the high schools, and 5,000 in junior colleges.

"We are entering the school year with an optimistic attitude," he said.

Teachers Assured of Pay.

"The teachers have assurance that they will receive regular pay, we have ample school books on hand to meet the needs of all the pupils, and in several ways the Chicago school system is ready to show advances toward progressive education."

In speaking of "progressive education," the superintendent pointed to his plans for promoting the "activity" method of teaching in the elementary schools, sometimes called the "learn by doing method," and the opening of four additional prevocational branches.

Six Old Schools Reorganized.

Last year the six prevocational schools then existing were organized into one unit with A. V. Wolfrum in charge. The four new branches will also be under Mr. Wolfrum's direction.

"The prevocational branches serve pupils who are out of adjustment with the regular schools," Mr. Bogan said. "Pupils of all types, ranging from dull to extremely brilliant, who want a change to something different, and, above all, to get a chance to do something constructive with their hands, find the opportunity in prevocational schools."

P.-T. A. MANAGERS' BOARD TO OPEN SESSIONS TODAY

Strengthening of a movement to supplement school work with a home study plan is among the projects to be discussed when the board of managers of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers opens a four day session in the Edgewater Beach hotel this morning. The 90 members of the board, half of them men, attended a preliminary meeting in the hotel yesterday, drafting the conference program.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy of Winnetka, president of the board, will take charge of the meetings today. Mrs. J. K. Pettengill of Lansing, Mich., first vice president of the organization, presided yesterday. The board, including presidents of state P.-T. A. groups, will make plans for the next meeting of the national organization to be held in Milwaukee May 11 to 18, 1936.

The five departments of the national group will hold a dinner at 6 o'clock this evening. Miss Julia W. Merrill will direct arrangements. Mrs. Arthur R. Williams of Normal, president of the Illinois congress, will be hostess at a party for presidents of the 49 branches of the state organization.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Statesmen and educators are to speak, celebrated concert artists are to play, and drama by widely known writers is to be presented on the new World Peaceways program, beginning over WBBM-CBS next Thursday at 8:30 o'clock. This program is to be sponsored by that drug concern that once had Will Rogers on the air. World Peaceways is said to be a non-profit and nonpolitical organization interested in peace education. The speakers on this series are to include Senator Borah, Senator Nye, Alfred E. Smith, Dr. Glenn Frank and William E. Green. Musical entertainment will be provided by Lucrezia Bori, Jascha Heifetz, Edward Johnson, Greta Stueckgold, George Gershwin, Richard Crooks, Albert Spalding, Lotte Lehmann, and Richard Bonelli.

Deems Taylor will appear on all programs as master of ceremonies and Howard Barlow is to conduct the orchestra and chorus. Among the writers who will contribute an original drama for each broadcast are Sidney Howard, Humphrey Cobb, Fannie Hurst, Rupert Hughes, Zoe Akins, Maxwell Anderson, Zona Gale, F. Scott Fitzgerald, John Erskine, S. S. Van Dine and Heywood Broun.

Beg Your Pardon: The velvety voiced soloist who appeared with Ben Bernie last Tuesday referred to in yesterday's column was, of course, Lynn Martin, a dark haired lass who came from Milwaukee recently to make good at NBC, instead of Lynn Cole, as printed. Lynn Cole is the well known high tenor who appeared last season with George Olsen who has been free lancing about Chicago the last summer.

Mayor Kelly will be heard as narrator in a special radio presentation of Chicago's Homecoming celebration over WBBM from 9:45 to 10:15 this evening. Under the title "The Meaning of Chicago," a musical and dramatic program depicting outstanding historic events in the city's history is to be presented. Billy Mills' orchestra will set the stage musically.

MAY ESTIMATE ROGERS ESTATE IN COURT TODAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Hearing on the petition for probate of the will of the late Will Rogers is set for tomorrow in Superior court. At that time an estimate of the value of the estate may be made.

Unofficial estimates of the estate, including insurance, have centered around $2,500,000. The will is dated Aug. 3, just 12 days before the screen comedian died in an Alaskan airplane crash with Wiley Post, and under its terms the entire estate is left to the widow, Mrs. Betty Blake Rogers.

The petition for probate of the will, filed shortly after the funeral, stated only that the estate will exceed $10,000, but the court may require a more exact estimate in fixing bond for the executors, who include James K. Blake, brother of Mrs. Rogers; Oscar Lawler, Rogers' attorney, and O. N. Beasley of Beverly Hills.

Mrs. Rogers, who is also an executrix, is not required to furnish bond under terms of the brief document.

Himmel, 2719 Asbury avenue, Evanston. Mr. Himmel said that arrangements for the funeral, which would be private, had not been completed.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

A LETTER from a charming girl who went on a Greek island cruise this summer—a personal letter—described the beauty of the islands, Younger Generation. of Ægean sunsets, of St. Sophia and its mosaics, of medieval Rhodes, with its street of the knights, and of Malta and its crusader castles. The names of the places visited were a classic litany—Patmos and Mytilene, Halicarnassus and Troy.

"We went through the Sea of Marmora and the next morning swam the Hellespont at 6:45," she wrote. "It wasn't very far—1¾ miles. It took us sixty minutes exactly. We had breakfast and landed at Chanak, and drove to Troy through Turkish countryside . . ."

THERE was no further reference to the swimming of the Hellespont. The writer contented herself with the laconic statement that she had done so, and went on to her description of Troy. That night they went to a night club somewhere or other—at Istanbul [Constantinople], I think she said—she and her brother and two friends who were taking the cruise.

It struck us as superb. Not so much her having swum the Hellespont—but the casualness with which it was mentioned and dismissed. It was, indeed, the mark of her generation [she is only 20]. This gesture toward a classic legend was a mere incident of the day, a stunt taken in her stride, like the trip by motor up the hill overlooking the Dardanelles to Troy, and the visit to the night club that night. . . . We suddenly felt quite old, and called for a footstool and a shawl.

YOU might be interested to hear of an experience of a different kind another girl had in Europe this summer. This girl, who is 17, and who will make her bow to Chicago society in a year or so, was sitting in a restaurant with members of her family when the interest of an older man sitting across the room became apparent. Finally he arranged for a mutual acquaintance to present him to the young girl and her mother, and he asked permission to join their party. The next day he sent a sheaf of red roses to the girl and a signed photograph—an earlier photograph in which he looked considerably younger. He was former Crown Prince Wilhelm of Germany. The 17 year old has never thought it worth mentioning.

AND, by the way, the brother of the girl who wrote so glowingly about the mellow ruins and the brilliant white Grecian island towns, and who is less travel-minded, wrote also.

"Our first stop Daphni, a very unimpressive spot with a few mediocre mosaics," he said . . . "Mycenæ was a wreck . . . Next we visited Tiryns, which was a total loss. We saw sites of old buildings . . . Then to Corinth and another rock pile and back to the ship."

Reveal Troths of Caryl Ely, Helen Johnson

Debutante of 1934 to Wed F. W. Fairman Jr.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO engagements this morning give to the early fall season—and to the society column—that romantic touch which is so fashionable this year, according to the fashion magazines and smart periodicals, not only in clothes but in outlook, manners, fiction, and conversation. The engagements are those of Miss Caryl Ely to Fred Wilson Fairman Jr., and of Miss Helen Johnson to William Mansfield Pearce.

Miss Ely's engagement to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson Fairman of Winnetka was announced last night by her mother, Mrs. Jay Morse Ely of Lake Forest and Thomasville, Ga., at a family supper party at the George A. Seaverns house in Lake Forest that Mrs. Ely and her family are occupying. It does not come as a great surprise to the younger crowd, for young Mr. Fairman has been the attractive Miss Ely's most devoted beau ever since she made her debut last winter.

Miss Ely's Debut Just a Year Ago.

Miss Ely, who was presented to society by her mother and maternal grandmother, Mrs. John H. Hamline, at a tea in Lake Forest a year ago yesterday, attended the Ethel Walker school in Simsbury, Conn., Stewart Hall in Virginia, and Mlle. Boissiere's in Paris. Miss Ely's paternal grandmother, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, gave a ball for her at the Casino during the Christmas holidays last year.

Mr. Fairman attended the North Shore Country Day school and the Berkshire school and now is in his senior year at Yale. The wedding will not take place until after he is graduated from college. Mrs. Ely and Miss Caryl and the younger daughter of the family, Adrienne, will leave for their plantation in Georgia the middle of January. Jay Morse Ely Jr. is a student at Yale.

Mr. Pearce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Pearce of East Orange, N. J., arrived in Chicago Saturday to be present at the luncheon that Mr. and Mrs. William B. Johnson gave yesterday at their home, 202 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston, to announce their daughter, Helen's, engagement to him. The guests had been invited to attend a party for the Misses Dorothy and Cornelia Fabian, who are to be married next Saturday, so the engagement announcement came as a surprise, although all Miss Johnson's intimate friends have known of the easterner's devotion to her for some time.

Pearce to Take His Bride Abroad.

Miss Johnson went east late in August to meet Mr. Pearce upon his return from a fifteen months' business trip which took him all the way around the world. Since then she has been visiting his parents and just returned home with him on Saturday. The wedding is planned for December and Mr. Pearce will take his bride to some foreign city to live, but he does not know now where he will be sent next. He is with the foreign department of a large company and it is probable that he and his bride will spend much of their time traveling.

Miss Johnson, who made her debut at a tea at home on Christmas, 1932, is a member of the Service club of the Chicago Junior league. She was educated at Roycemore, Miss Choate's school in Brookline, Mass., and Sarah Lawrence college. Mr. Pearce is a

Lace Trims Evening Ensemble

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

From a Chicago shop—A white starched lace collar trims this long, clinging evening gown and slips over the neckline of the matching long sleeved short jacket for a dinner ensemble. The same white lace is used for cuffs.

Brightly Trimmed Dark Lingerie Perfect with Autumn Outfits

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Tweeds and dark wools, the smartest, slimmest of street and daytime clothes, often prove ruinous to pastel tinted lingerie, so some inventive designer slashed into dark crêpes and bright trimmings and the result is the most practical, sane and super-slim underlayers of the year.

We're plenty sold about these navy blue and the black and brown costume slips and matching panties that are the slickest finds of the month.

If you like contrast [and who doesn't] you'll wear deep tobacco brown slip and panties piped with tiny edgings of orange under your beige, brown, or green wool dresses, and black trimmed with kelly green under pale gray and green wools, and navy piped with scarlet under navy, light blue, and beige.

These trim new underlayers are exquisitely tailored, fitting almost smoother than your best satin evening gown. The slips have narrow shoulder straps of the color, and tiny monograms can be ordered embroidered on both pieces in the same contrasting color as the piped edges.

The silk is heavy and dull of texture. Your velveteen dresses, all your wool clothes and slightly scratchy tweeds will slide over your streamlines with greatest of ease when you wear any of these dark colored slips. And that is something to know. Like a lot of other baffling simple "finds" every one will wonder why such superpractical stuff wasn't made a long time ago!

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

YOU: [You're always asking it] "What's a good picture in town?"

ME [or "I," if you prefer]: "'Annapolis Farewell.'"

YOU: "O, another of those U. S. Naval academy pictures?"

ME: Yes—another. But not just another! A fine, upstanding film with a finale that makes your heart turn over!

The piece is dedicated to the men of the U. S. Naval Training school and midshipmen and officers figure in the action.

The principal characters are Morton Haley and Boyce Avery, midshipmen—Boyce has entered training with the right spirit while Morton hasn't; Commodore Fitzhugh, retired, whose fussy interest in all that pertains to the school and whose passion for detailing at length his experience with Commodore Dewey, at which time he was in command of "The Congress," make him a nuisance, and Duncan Haley, brother of the cocky Morton.

Not till that finale I spoke about is the old commodore understood and appreciated. Then—well—then . . . !

Barring some too long drawn out scenes detailing mild disciplinary hazing of new cadets by upper classmen, "Annapolis Farewell" moves along with dispatch and presents its story in masterly fashion.

Laughs it has—but not too many of them. And not too many tears, either. In a word, the film isn't soppy from any angle.

Tom Brown and Richard Cromwell turn out some A-1 work as the warring roommates. John Howard as the nice, big brother gives a competent, sensitive performance. Appealing chap. Mighty good looking.

As for Sir Guy Standing as the old commodore—well, there's what you call acting! How these oldsters can up and show the younger generation when they've a mind to!

"Annapolis Farewell" was produced at Annapolis, Md. The work of the film unit dovetailed into the schedule of school activities so that in no way did the players or technicians interfere with routine.

Nice of Uncle Sam to be so cooperative, don't you think?

See you soon!

GRATZ SCOTT'S STORIES.

The death of Gratz M. Scott in New York has removed from the list of bridge leaders a name which was prominent in the venerable game of whist and in its successors, auction and contract bridge. One of the most popular of the expert players and teachers, Gratz was one of the few real gentlemen that we can boast of in the bridge profession. He came originally from St. Louis, a city that gave to bridge many well known names, including Bryant McCampbell, whom I always have considered the greatest auction player of all and from whose genius I have learned so much. He made the St. Louis Racquet club famous in the annals of bridge. Not only was Gratz a genial host, but he had a supply of amusing stories about bridge experiences which seemed nearly inexhaustible.

It is possible that Gratz Scott's untimely death was hastened by the following harrowing experience: He was playing for pretty high stakes with a millionaire as a partner who fancied himself rather hot as a bridge player but who actually was a beginner. Holding spades A-K-Q-2, hearts A-K-Q, diamonds A-K-Q, clubs A-K-Q, the self-styled expert found himself playing a grand slam in spades. The dummy held four spades to the jack. A club was opened, and the beginner first took his three high clubs. Then he led out his top hearts, then his top diamonds. Now, having nothing left but the four high trumps, he proudly led them out, starting with the ace. By a miracle, every player had three cards of each suit, and no one could trump his hearts, diamonds, or clubs, so he won every trick. Meanwhile, poor Gratz was suffering tortures of hell every time a card was led. Swelling with pride, the millionaire turned to Gratz: "Well, that was perfect, eh, Gratz?"

"Perfect, you miserable fish!" Gratz exclaimed, on the verge of collapse. "You had thirteen cards to play and not one of them did you play correctly."

Two Chances for One.

One of the qualities which made Gratz Scott a great player was his refusal to take anything for granted. In the deal below he was successful only because he did not assume that an opponent necessarily held the high cards in the suit he had bid.

♣ A-K-J-4-3

The bidding [North-South vulnerable]:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1 Ht.	Pass	1 Sp.	2 Di.
3 Di.	Pass	4 Ht.	Pass
4 N. T.	Pass	5 Ht.	Pass
6 Cl.	Pass	6 Ht. [final bid]

West opened with 5 of hearts.

West, not knowing his partner could win the first trick in spades, opened the 5 of trumps. Gratz Scott was South. After drawing trumps he could see a sure losing spade trick. He must avoid losing a club. This seemed easy, for East had bid diamonds and it was likely that he held the king. South could finesse for the diamond king and discard one of dummy's clubs on the diamond ace. Before trying this, however, he decided to give himself an extra chance. If the club queen were doubleton he would not have to risk the diamond finesse. He led out the ace and king of clubs. The queen dropped, and South later trumped the diamond queen and made six hearts. The diamond finesse would have lost.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

QUESTION — What is an honor-trick?

ANSWER — Defensive honor-tricks are cards which will win tricks the first or second time the suit is led. For example, an ace always is one honor-trick; K-Q-x is one honor-trick; A-K, two honor-tricks. But Q-J-10, although it will win after the ace and king are played, must be counted only one-half honor-trick, for it will not win a trick until the third round of the suit.

Warner Baxter Recuperating from 12 Weeks' Clank of Spurs

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—One hears some unusual things around the movie studios, but the latest and most unusual is the reason announced at M. G. M. studio for Warner Baxter's temporary retirement to his home to rest and recuperate. Baxter played the Mexican outlaw, Joaquin Murietta, of gold mining days in California in M. G. M.'s film, "Robin Hood of Eldorado," which has just been completed. In his costume for the rôle Baxter had to wear heavy spurs for the twelve weeks which were consumed in the shooting. The clanking of the spurs finally wore on his nerves so much that Baxter had to go home and rest. The studio reports his physician saying the actor will be all right later this week.

After three years out of films Julia Faye, once C. B. DeMille's featured star, is back playing a minor rôle in one of Bob Benchley's shorts, titled "Etiquette."

The Screen Guild, which now is selecting "best performances" monthly, has nominated the late Will Rogers for his rôle as Dr. Pearly, in "Steamboat Round the Bend," and Henry Fonda, in the farm boy rôle of Don Harrow in "Farmer Takes a Wife," for the outstanding bits of movie acting in August. "Farmer Takes a Wife" is nominated as the best screen play shown last month.

BORDER BREED

By William MacLeod Raine

INSTALMENT I.
BABES IN THE WOODS.

The long whiplash snapped close to the cocked ear of the off leader. Almost automatically a string of crackling oaths poured from the lips of Dan Clifford. He never swore except at his mules. It was an axiom among skinners that shavetails could be stirred from their sloth only by bristling profanity. The expletives of the young driver were merely professional jargon.

Straight as a gunbarrel the white ribbon road stretched across the plain. At intervals rose billowing clouds of dust. All the world, it seemed to Dan, was moving toward Los Pinos. The adobe village had slept undisturbed for scores of years, had lain at peace in a coma of sunshine. Of a sudden destiny had decided to make a metropolis of it. Four transcontinental lines were pushing toward Dave Shotwell's saloon, at the bar of which the drifting Southwest had been in the habit of pouring down baked throats bottled lightning. From the rail heads of advancing civilization streamed a varied assortment of people using all available forms of transportation.

In the outfit to which Dan was attached were six immense freight wagons. They belonged to Ochoa and Waller, and they were carrying supplies to Los Pinos. In those wagons one could have found everything from a paper of pins to a barrel of flour. There would be a good market for food, clothes, lumber, hardware, and liquor.

The mule train swung around a covered wagon, as ramshackle a concern as Dan had seen, and he had looked upon some remarkable ones. The horses were so poor their bones stuck out. Broken in a dozen places, harness had been tied with string and strips of cotton cloth. Drunkenly the wheels sagged.

The wagon was not moving. A tug had broken, and a girl was standing helplessly holding it in her hand. She was clad in faded patched calico. Through the gaping end of a shoe Dan saw dusty toes protruding. In the wagon were two children, a boy of about nine, a girl some years younger.

Through the dust Dan caught sight of Pete Mulrooney, the wagon master. He was moving across the road to the girl. For a moment the two talked together.

The broad red beard of Mulrooney turned toward young Clifford.

"You, Dan—come here," he called.

Pulling up his team the mule skinner dismounted from the wagon.

"Give this little lady a hand, Dan," Mulrooney ordered. "Fix up this

But the plight of these young movers disturbed him.

tug for her so she can reach Los Pinos. See you at the Elephant Corral, in case you don't catch up with us before we get in."

Mulrooney strode back to his wagon. A long whip cracked. He was on his way.

Dan took the broken tug from the girl and examined it. From his wagon he got a hammer, rivets, and a long strip of lether. With his knife he trimmed the rawhide to the shape of a tug. After the job was completed he looked the rest of the harness over and substituted here and there stout rawhide thongs for the flimsy string that held the pieces together.

He had worked in silence, increasingly aware that the face beneath the sunbonnet was both young and troubled. What in heaven's name was she doing here with these other children unprotected by a man?

"Where's your father?" he asked at last abruptly.

Tear blobs gathered in her eyes. "He—died," she murmured.

"Since you started?"

"Yes. This side of San Antonio." The tears rolled down her cheeks.

He said gruffly: "You three all the family there is?"

"Yes." She brushed away the tears and said with a wan smile, "I'm the mother and daddy of it."

"You're headed for Los Pinos?"

"Yes."

"Got friends there?"

"No."

His sympathy expressed itself in exasperation. These babes in the woods had no right to go to hell-raising Los Pinos. When he had left there two months ago there had not been a dozen straight women in town. The rest were dance hall girls, mostly Mexicans.

The girl lifted shy lovely eyes to his. He could see anxiety in them. Dan had not the heart to tell her what kind of place Los Pinos was.

Then abruptly he said, "You ought to go back to your kinfolks where you come from."

"We haven't any—none who want us," she said.

He flung another question at her. "How old are you?"

"Going on seventeen."

The helplessness of her youth and inexperience was pathetic. To make matters worse she was very pretty. With that wild rose color in her cheeks, with that sweet sensitive mouth, with the shy appeal in the dusky eyes beneath the long curved lashes, she was sure to be the prey of some predatory male. What she needed was a father or a brother with a long-nosed Colt's ready to flash into sight at the hint of an insult.

Though just past twenty, by the standards of the frontier Dan had considered himself a man for three years. He knew and accepted its code. You minded your business. You asked no fool questions. If you got into a difficulty you had to fight your way out. His slim brown body was hard as nails. The carefree way of his kind he trod with confidence.

But the plight of these young movers disturbed him. Before the boom they would have been safe enough at Los Pinos. If the men there were tough characters they had at least the outdoor virtue of respect for a good woman. Now it was different. Into the town were pouring gamblers, desperadoes, prostitutes, all of the rifraf of the untamed West.

Dan unhitched the scarecrows and tied them back of her wagon. This he fastened to his own outfit.

"You'll get along faster this way," he said gruffly.

In a small timid voice she thanked him. "You're good to us," she added shyly.

The mountains to the east and west were beginning to press in on the valley. The road drew nearer the river, back of which hills rose close to the stream. Soon the travelers would be among the vineyards and the orchards irrigated by winding acequias.

Dan was glad to be so close to his journey's end. Tonight he would make a round of the new dance halls and gambling places. He might try a fling at chuck-a-luck or twenty-one. He had been on the road for many days, with no companionship but that of his fellow mule skinners. The sap of youth flowed strongly in him. A hunger for excitement filled his veins. There was a dusky, lithe bodied girl at The Last Chance who had turned her soft eyes on him. He had pretended not to see her advances, but if she still looked as pretty to him as she had when he last saw her . . .

When he drew up beside the river the sun was beginning to drop toward the western horizon.

"Time for grub," he explained. "I reckon the kids are hungry."

He built a fire of cow chips while she brought out her meager store of provisions. All she had left was corn meal and salt side.

"I've been expecting to get more at Los Pinos," she apologized with a blush.

Dan doubted whether she had as much as two bits left in cash. Her own dress and that of her little sister were neatly patched in half a dozen places. The trousers worn by the boy had manifestly been made from an old pair of his father's. They had been mended and added to so often that it was difficult to tell what the original pattern had been. Yet somehow, in spite of poverty and the dust of travel, the children looked clean.

From his own wagon Dan brought canned tomatoes, bacon, and coffee. While the older girl made the corn pone he took charge of the rest of the dinner. The children ate as if they were starved.

"Our name is Sutherland," the 17 year old sister said shyly. "I am Milly. My sister is Rose. Our brother is called Tom."

Dan mentioned his own name.

"What do you figure on doing at Los Pinos?" he asked.

"I can wash clothes if there is anything of that kind to do," she answered in a soft drawl of the South.

'Gilded Cage' Type of Girl Seldom Useful

Husband of One Must Expect Impracticality.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Bill reports that he is hopelessly in love with a girl. "She's so darned easy on the eyes" he repeats as her great asset. He could forgive her anything, he knows, "because she is so easy on the eyes." She could serve him burned steaks, leaden biscuits, and bad coffee and he'd eat and drink with gusto "because she is so easy on the eyes!" He's been warned by his pals about the girl's character. They call her the prize gold digger and get-what-she-wants girl. Even her past is under a cloud of suspicion, but she's easy on the eyes, Bill argues.

"What do you think?" he asks.

We think it is grand to be in love with a girl who is easy on the eyes and it is a perfectly normal reaction. But there comes a time in the affairs of a busy business man when a good steak and a swell cup of coffee are so easy on the palate that the eyes' appetite isn't reckoned at all. We are all for men marrying girls whose sole appeal is eye appeal, providing said men are willing to keep such girls in the proverbial gilded cage.

Don't expect them to work. Don't expect them to get breakfast for you. Don't expect them to take up a needle and fix a button or a sock hole. Don't expect them to be on time for appointments. Don't expect them to nurse and coddle you should you find yourself taken down with the flu or any other constitutional disorder. If you're willing to take them under such circumstances strain yourself day after day trying to amass enough money to keep them well dressed and being seen at smart places, go ahead and marry them. But, for goodness sake, after you are married a year, two or five, don't come around crying because your beautiful doll won't lift a hand to help.

However, we don't think there are many women of this day and age whose blessings are confined to pictorial ones. Only we do get a bit fed up on complaints from men who marry the decorative one and expect her to turn household drudge and lady in waiting in a minute. Besides it is a queer thing about beauty in marriage. The pretty face of courtship days isn't half so appealing in marriage as the good natured expression, the humane eye, and the hand that is extended in kindly coöperation.

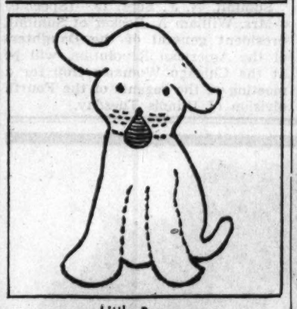
Saucy Puppy Is Lovable Motif of Juvenile Quilt



Little Bowser.

BY NANCY CABOT.

What youngster wouldn't dote on as cunning a companion as "Little Bowser?" If the puppy doesn't rate an entire coverlet, he makes an excellent pillow top or an applique motif for bibs and dresses. But a quilt with a yellow background and a brown dog wagging a brilliant red tongue make a most colorful and appealing quilt for a child's bed. Only 12 applique blocks are required for a quilt measuring 48 by 69 inches.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

The booklet, "Thirty-six Stains and How to Remove Them," is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 5 cents. By mail, 7 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Much as it seems that national whoosis weeks of all kinds are being overdone, just to put it mildly, we find ourselves in the unpleasant category of movement starters by wanting to declare our own "soup week." If, by so naming it, we're offending any tender sensibilities, just skip the title. At any rate it's soup weather and today's column is the first of a series of five—all about soup! The first three are about homemade soups; clear soups, cream soups, and the hearty chowders.. The next will be a mention of a few especially good commercially canned ones, and the windup a discussion of soup accompaniments.

The makings of a good clear appetizer soup always begin with a good soup stock, full of rich flavor, sparkling clear, and deftly seasoned. Brown stock, made from beef and seasonings, probably is the most popular and versatile of the lot, although white stock, made from chicken or veal, sometimes is used, as is fish stock.

And now for the making of the stock itself. First, as to the meats to be used. Leftovers may be used in the soup kettle: beef bones, small pieces of cooked beef or veal, chop bones, leftover fowl and carcasses, and lamb bones and trimmings. Smoked or corned meats are undesirable, as are fatty pieces of lamb or mutton.

Among the fresh meats, if your larder doesn't provide much in the way of leftovers you probably will want to choose beef, for both its utility and economy. Cuts from the fore or hind shin, which contains the marrow bone, are good, especially the middle cuts. If the lower shin is used a cheap piece of lean meat is best used with it to complete the richness of the meat flavor. In general the proportions used for soup stocks are two-thirds lean meat and one-third bone and fat.

The list of spices for soup stocks seems overpowering to slim cupboard shelves, but once provided the essentials aren't difficult to keep on hand. Packaged herbs such as thyme, savory, and marjoram go into the stock, and it's well to have bay leaves, whole cloves, allspice berries, peppercorns, stick cinnamon, and celery seed. Which combinations of these you choose is a matter of individual preference, but it's important to keep a variety on hand for distinctive seasoning.

In making the stock part of the lean meat usually is browned to give color and flavor to the stock. After browning it is combined with the remaining meat, fat, and bone, put in a soup kettle, and covered with cold water, allowing one pint to each pound. Heat the kettle to the boiling point and cook for 6 or 7 hours at a low temperature, removing scum at intervals. Vegetables and spices are added during the last hour of cooking, after which the soup is strained and allowed to cool quickly, uncovered. A piece of absorbent paper may be used to blot off the fat while the soup is still warm, while the remaining fat may be removed with a knife or spoon after it has cooled. As a final precaution, a cloth wrung out of hot water may be passed around the edge of the kettle and over the top of the cold stock.

Clearing the stock is a final step which may be accomplished in one of several ways. Our favorite is to remove a quart of the stock to a saucepan and combine it with an egg white, slighten beaten with a little cold water and a crushed egg shell. Stir the stock until boiling, let boil two minutes, and let stand for 20 minutes off the heat. Then strain through double thicknesses of cheese cloth.

The Husband Snatcher

By Elizabeth York Miller.

INSTALMENT XLIII.

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW PROBLEM.

Nancy sent the £100 and got back a letter of grateful thanks. Also some news.

"Sylvia Lane and her mother are staying at this hotel," Edith wrote. "I didn't tell you before because I thought that the least said about Sylvia, the better. We speak when we have to, but, of course, I am not friendly with them. Sylvia is trying to get her hooks into Mr. Denman. I think I've mentioned him before. Such a nice man—an American, and retired from business. He was so kind about my ankle. We play double rummy every night and often he takes me out for a drive in his car. It may be my duty to put a flea in his ear if he lets that Lane girl get around him."

Dick and Nancy laughed a little over this letter.

"Poor mother! So that's what's holding her all this time. I wonder how old this Denman bird is?" remarked Dick.

"And Sylvia is cutting her out," said Nancy. "Well, I know exactly how she feels. Spiteful. I did, when Sylvia started making eyes at you."

Dick took her in his arms and kissed her long and tenderly. "You promised—you said I was forgiven—you said you believed every single word I told you about that affair," he reminded her.

"O, Dicky, I'm sorry! I won't ever mention it again."

"Well, see that you don't, my love."

. . . . . .

As April approached it was understood that Edith Heritage would be returning in a few days to take up her residence again in Primrose Dene.

The best spare room was again put in order for her, freshly papered and spring cleaned. The baby and his nurse went into the little back bedroom. Nancy thought that before long she would dispense with the nursemaid and look after her son herself, but just at first it might be difficult.

Dick's mother required such a lot of waiting on.

And then, out of the blue, the mother-in-law problem was solved.

The day before they were expecting Edith back the telephone started ringing just as Dick entered the house on his return from the office.

Nancy, at the head of the stairs with the baby in her arms, called down to him.

"O, it's you—do answer it, darling!"

She came on down the stairs, all unsuspecting of the import of that summons, and stood near him laughing and cooing at her baby while Dick answered the phone.

"Wait a minute, sweetness—you can go to daddy presently. He's busy now. O, you funny, funny little mite! I do believe you know your daddy . . ."

"Keep quiet, Nance. . . . What's that? O, yes—yes. What? . . . O, mother. Hello, dear, how are you? . . . O, that's fine. What—you're in London? But, I say, we weren't expecting you until tomorrow. Was there any mistake about that? Where are you phoning from? . . ."

There was a long pause, during which Dick—with the receiver still at his ear—turned and looked at Nancy, his eyes bulging strangely.

Then suddenly he began to laugh. "That's all right, I'll tell her. . . . Yes, I'm sure she'll be delighted—and I'll tell you what I think of him after we've met. . . . Yes, we'll be along in about an hour. Good-by, dear, for the moment."

Dick hung up the receiver and emitted a long, low whistle.

"What do you think! She's married—married to that man, Denman, whoever he may be. They're staying at the Savoy—just arrived—and want us to dine with them."

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed Nancy.

"I thought you'd be surprised. It nearly knocked me sidewise."

"She cut Sylvia out," said Nancy in an awestricken tone.

"You mean, she didn't let Sylvia cut her out."

They looked at each other a little guiltily. After all, they couldn't stop Dick's mother from getting married again if she wanted to—but should they secretly feel so glad that it had happened?

Acne Condition Crucial Factor in Teen Years

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's a good wholesome sign when schools are interesting themselves in spreading propaganda on the subject of how to evade that curse of young people's lives, the "hickies," as the young ones call them. We older ones know them better as pimples and acne conditions common to the teens.

A study is being undertaken, we are informed, in the public schools of one of the large cities in an effort to learn more about the blackhead and pimple ailment among youth and to check it as much as possible.

During the sensitive years of the teens and early twenties, a pimply complexion is an almost unbearable burden in most boys and girls, just at the age when they want to look their best.

The school campaign is spreading the information that these pimples are more than skin deep. During the years of adolescence, the development of important glands disturbs the entire body. Waste products are created in the system and get into the blood stream. The result is that they irritate the skin where most oil glands are found, on the face, shoulders, chest, and back.

The eating of fresh yeast, investigators find, supplies elements to the body that clear the skin irritants from the blood. So they say, anyway.

A survey was made among three large groups of young people, which showed results, it is claimed, in clearing up 89 per cent of the cases in one group, 83 per cent in another and 77 per cent in the third.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Beauty tricks of the week:

Chubby, incredibly soft little blending brushes, one for powder and one for rouge. They're not sold separately, and are not inexpensive, but they're useful dressing table accessories for the fastidious woman.

The point of blenders is a good one. You should always, if you want the most attractive effect with your powder, pat it on firmly and generously all over your face and neck. Then we like to let it "settle" for a moment—and then dust the surface lightly with a soft brush. The idea we'd like to emphasize is NOT to rub the powder in.

The smaller of these two downy brushes is destined to be used after applying rouge to blend and smooth it lightly so there are no sharp outlines.

Sense of Failure Makes Life Miserable for Many Pupils

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

School days, school days,
Dear old golden school days.
Reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic,
Taught to the tune of a hickory stick, goes the refrain of an old song from an old musical show, which you may have heard, in the present vogue for reviving old tunes—or may even have heard somewhere in your family, sung by people who like the musical style of the "gay nineties."

The hickory stick or its equivalent, the birch rod, has gone pretty much into the discard these days. But many children who never had their knuckles cracked or their palms switched in the cause of the three R's have turned their steps toward school with dread and inward groans these last ten days or so. Their inability to conquer these skills, coupled with the attitude of parents and teachers toward their failure, causes them perhaps as much pain, of a kind, as the corporal punishment of another day.

Once again, as September comes around, the struggle is taken up again—a depressing burden that they must carry until vacation once again sets them free.

Do you think I am exaggerating to a ridiculous degree when I say that a child's life can be made quite miserable by failure or partial failure in school life—and that the supreme importance given to these tool subjects, especially arithmetic, is the cause of much of this sense of failure? You would not think so if you could see into the hearts of those children—or older boys and girls—who find themselves sitting frustrated, day after day, before the work set for their class. Or struggling in the evening, often with family help, over assigned lessons for home study.

Until all our schools have a better sense of proportion as to the importance of these three skills, many children must make the best of it. However, I am sure that a few articles on the subject will be helpful to many children and their parents.

"Mental Hygiene in the Classroom," a booklet of interest to teachers, may be obtained from this department on receipt of fifteen cents and a large envelope.

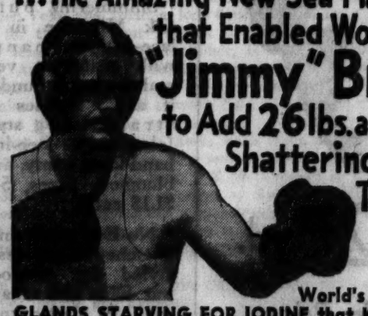
From the Pacific Ocean!
...the Amazing New Sea Plant Concentrate that Enabled World's Champion "Jimmy" Braddock to Add 26 lbs. and Build New Shattering Strength and Tireless Energy and Pep!



Kelpamalt, the New Mineral Concentrate Taken from a Huge Sea Vegetable, Contains 13 Vitally Needed Body Minerals and is the World's Richest Source of Precious "Natural Iodine."

World's Champion Says, "IT'S GLANDS STARVING FOR IODINE that Keep you Weak, Nervous, Rundown." Urges All Skinny Folks to Try Kelpamalt. You Must Add New Lbs. and Feel Fine the 1st Week or Trial Is Free.

Here at last "Jimmy" Braddock reveals for the first time his newly discovered training secret that has enabled him to add in 6 weeks 26 needed pounds of good, solid flesh, the new driving, shattering power behind his punch that won him the World's Championship.

As the result of tests covering thousands of cases of skinniness—both natural or as the result of poor health, weakened, rundown condition or poor blood—Braddock learned that the trouble is largely IODINE STARVED GLANDS. When these glands—particularly the important gland which controls weight building — lack NATURAL PLANT IODINE, even diets rich in starches and fats fail to add weight. That's why skinny people often have huge appetites, yet stay skinny.

At the suggestion of a famous physical trainer, Braddock tried Kelpamalt—a mineral concentrate derived from a huge 90-foot sea vegetable harvested off the Pacific Coast to correct his lack of weight. By providing a rich, concentrated supply of this precious substance (1,300 times richer in iodine than oysters), Kelpamalt at last put food to work for him. Kelpamalt, too, offers 12 other minerals which stimulate the digestive glands which alone produce the juices that enable you to digest fats and starches. 3 Kelpamalt tablets contain more iron and copper than 1 lb. of spinach or 7½ lbs. of fresh tomatoes; more iodine than 1,586 lbs. lettuce, more calcium than 6 eggs.

Start Kelpamalt today. Even if you are "naturally skinny," you must add 5 lbs. the first week or the trial is free. Costs but little to use.

CALLS RED CREED THREAT TO FREE WORSHIP IN U. S.

C.W. Hadley, Former State Official, Fills Pulpit.

Communism aims not only at the destruction of the government of a free people but perils all religious beliefs, Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton, former first assistant attorney general of Illinois, declared last night. He spoke to the congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal church in the Temple building at 77 West Washington street.

Taking as his text part of the thirteenth chapter of the Book of Revelation, Mr. Hadley likened communism to the "beast" whose coming was prophesied in that part of the scripture. He said that at the present time the "red beast" is operating insidiously in the United States, spreading a poison to undermine the government and substitute a "planned religion" for the tolerance of worship which has been the "most prized heritage" of the American people.

Urges Support of Constitution.

Only adherence to the constitution and the restoration of the balance between the branches of government can combat the "red beast," Mr. Hadley said. He urged a reaffirmation of patriotic principles, a "rededication and reconsecration of our lives to the preservation of the constitution and the form of government founded thereon."

Mr. Hadley read from Revelations: "I saw a beast coming out of the sea, and all the earth was in admiration of the beast. And there was given to the beast a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies."

"The beast of Marxism, or Leninism, or Bolshevism," said the speaker, "has come up out of the sea and overrun the world, and many of the leaders and rulers and millions of the people throughout the world are in admiration after the beast and his mouth is promising great things and blasphemies.

Attempt to Win Youth.

"The Red beast, under the guise of ending the depression, has been by sinister influences attempting to win the youth of today away from Christianity."

Mr. Hadley pointed out that the government never can take the place of the great charity organizations of the churches. He said that if the people turned over federal power to a small group of burocrats, this group would immediately set about to abolish all religion.

"The communist form of government," he said, "which forces charity, is nothing more or less than a Robin Hood government, which steals from some to give to others. To give the chief executive supreme power strikes at the very form of our government. The placing of supreme power in one man sooner or later leads to the exercise of dictatorial power and destroys religious freedom."

GIANTS HAMMER DIZZY DEAN, BEAT CARDS, 7-3

CHICAGO CARDS WHIP PACKERS IN OPENER, 7 TO 6

Bill Smith Scores on Pass.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 15.—The Chicago Cardinals opened their National Professional Football league season here today with a 7 to 6 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

Both touchdowns were scored in the first half on forward passes, Bill Smith, Cardinal end, going over for the first one in the first period and Swede Johnston, Packer full back, scoring in the second period.

The deciding point was a drop kick by Paul Pardonner, Cardinal quarter back, after Smith had taken his touchdown pass from Doug Russell. Bob Monnett's attempt to kick the extra point from placement for Green Bay was wide of the posts.

Russell, Peterson Lead Way.

The score is a fair medium of comparison, the Cardinals holding an edge throughout. Russell, one of the fleetest backs in the league, led the offense which found frequent holes in the heavy Packer line. When Russell tired, Dot Peterson, a midget half back from Gonzaga, was turned loose on the Packers and piled up gain after gain, leading the Cardinals on three marches deep into Packer territory in the second half.

The Packers' play today was a definite improvement over last year's team despite the fact that George Sauer, Clark Hinkle and Roger Grove were unable to appear because of injuries. Arnold Herber did get in for four plays to pass late in the game, but he had left the hospital only two days ago. These four cripples are regarded as the regular back field. The Green Bay offense today was centered in the veteran Johnny Blood.

Russell Hard to Stop.

Russell became a problem for the Packers as soon as the Cardinals took the ball in the first quarter. He sliced off tackle and cut back over the guards for repeated gains. His punting, against a brisk west wind, was not so successful and his running was not enough to make a steady march; so Pardonner began mixing in passes to lead to the first score of the game after the second exchange of punts.

Johnston, the Marquette full back, recalled by the Packers from the St. Louis Gunners, punted out of bounds on the Cardinals' 44 yard line and the touchdown drive got under way immediately with a 12 yard run off left tackle by Al Nichelini. Mikulak lost five, but a second down pass, Russell to Pardonner, was good for 27 yards. Pardonner reversed his field and was away until Engebretsen tripped him up from behind on the 22 yard line.

Blood Peps Packers.

Russell and Mikulak failed to gain. On third down Russell passed to Smith in the flat zone to the left. The ball bounded off Smith's chest as the Packer secondary closed in, and Smith juggled the recovery, but got hold of the ball before it fell, breaking out of Goldenberg's grasp to score. Pardonner dropkicked the extra point.

The Packers became a changed team when Johnny Blood replaced Joe Laws in the back field. Blood's ball carrying led to a touchdown early in the second period.

Blood's punt landed on the one yard line, where Hutson killed it. Russell kicked out on the first play and Monnett returned the punt 12 yards to the Cardinals' 34 yard line. Blood added five at center on a spinner and the Packers received a first down on the Cardinals' 12 yard line when Russell was penalized for interference with Blood on a forward pass from Johnston. Monnett picked up six yards in two smashes and then passed to Johnston in the corner of the field for a touchdown. The play started as an off tackle smash and the Cardinals were fooled.

Laws was rushed back into the game in place of Blood to hold the ball for Monnett on the try for the extra point. The kick was wide and the Packers trailed, 7 to 6.

500 Baer Fans Tumble as Stand Collapses, 25 Injured

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Speculator, N. Y., Sept. 15.—More than a score of spectators were injured this afternoon when a grandstand collapsed at Baer's training camp. Five hundred were jammed on the stand to get a view of the former heavyweight champion's drills in preparation for his battle on Sept. 24 with Joe Louis. Physicians placed the number of injured at twenty-five, but only three, according to a report, will require more than first aid treatment.

The accident momentarily threw the crowd of 5,000 Sunday visitors into an uproar and Baer ceased his work in the ring. State troopers, assisted by members of Baer's retinue, extricated the injured. Mrs. Donald Burch of Lake George, N. Y., was badly shaken by a ten foot fall and suffered a possible concussion of the brain. William Metz, Salisbury Center, N. Y., possible fracture of the shoulder, and Mrs. William Russ, Schenectady, N. Y., fracture of the right ankle, were other major casualties.

Look for Damage Suits.

Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager; Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and Mike Jacobs, promoter of the impending fight in New York which already has an advance sale of $500,000, were among today's visitors.

Question of liability in event any of those injured in the collapse of the bleachers should sue for damages immediately arose. William Osborne is the owner of the hotel and grounds on which the training camp is located. It is managed by his brother, Robert, who leased its use to Jerry Casale, an employé of Hoffman. Before dusk, apparently in anticipation of court action, an attorney from Amsterdam, N. Y., visited the camp.

After the accident Baer finished his workout, which consisted of six rounds of boxing and four of exercises. George Turner, Willie McGee, Paul Pross, and Lou Scozza divided the boxing chore, with Turner and McGee drawing two rounds each.

Turner Breaks Through.

Turner, a New York heavyweight, was making his first appearance against the former champion and he was able to penetrate Baer's defenses and land several hard punches to the side of the head.

Dempsey, who left immediately after the workout, gave his approval of Baer's condition.

"There is no doubt in my mind," Dempsey told reporters, "but that Max is in fine condition. He'll be a hard man to beat on the night of the 24th. This is Baer's chance to redeem himself for his indifferent fight against Jim Braddock. Certainly he will try to gain proper condition, for it is the only stepping stone by which he can gain the chance to win back his title. He looks to me as if he's ready."

He's Really Hiding Out.

According to other observers Baer is not the playboy who pranced through his training last June prior to his fight with Braddock. For that matter, he has had practically no opportunity to meet any other than those responsible for his conditioning. Baer is sequestered at Olmstead camp on Sacandaga lake, about five miles from the Osborn hotel on Lake Pleasant. Not even Baer's wife can violate the rigid camp law which bars visitors.

The location of this camp in the rising heights of the Adirondacks is ideal. Here Max Schmeling and Gene Tunney prepared for their most important battles. The army of summer vacationists, which annually scatters through these pine forests in the

SOX BEAT A'S, 8-2; THEN LOSE 2D IN 10TH, 7-5

Wyatt Falters in Ninth; Higgins' Homer Wins.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 15.—The White Sox this afternoon almost made it four straight in two days, but after they had won the first game of a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 2, and seemingly had the second contest well in hand, that morning glory strain got 'em again, and what had been a 5 to 3 Chicago advantage going into the A's eighth, became an eventual 7 to 5 loss.

Charley Berry drove in two runs with a triple in the ninth, and with two out in the tenth Pinky Higgins knocked a homer with Jimmy Foxx on base. Whitlow Wyatt, sketchily listed on the Sox list as a relief pitcher, was the victim of the four runs which so violently turned the tide. Thus the tail-end Athletics took the series, four games to three.

Lose Chance for Third Place.

The Sox entered the arena with a mathematical chance to go into third place, which may have had something to do with the flop in the second game, for the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox crossed up the arithmetic by winning and added pressure on our timid fellows.

FIRST GAME

Jimmy Foxx got the day's scoring program under way in the third inning of the first game when he socked his No. 34 homer of the year with one on base. Cramer opened the inning with a single, then Finney attempted to sacrifice and popped to Tietje. It was at this point that Foxx drove the ball into the grandstand in left center.

The White Sox' first hit off Turbeville blossomed into the first Chicago run. With one down in the fourth Bonura singled to center. Appling walked and Hayes followed with a long single. Bonura became confused on the play and stopped at third. Thus the bases were loaded. Hopkins followed with a single to left scoring Bonura and Appling.

Sox Get Going in Sixth.

A walk to Appling, the second of Hayes' series of hits—a double—and a single by Sewell gave the Sox two runs and a 4 to 2 lead in the sixth and three more were added in the seventh. In this inning Bonura, Appling and Hayes singled successively to bring about the retreat of Turbeville and later a single, good for a run, was made off Caster by Sewell.

The Sox registered their eighth run in the ninth inning. A double by Haas and a single by Hopkins were the essential factors.

SECOND GAME

The Athletics started the scoring in the second game when they put across one run after two were out in the first inning. A walk to Cramer and singles by Foxx and Higgins did the business.

The Sox made three runs in the second inning and would have had more, but for the fact Appling was seized with a mad running impulse. With one down, Luke singled to center and stopped at second when McNair lost Hayes' popup in the sun and let it fall for a single. A few seconds later Appling decided to run to third base. He was out when Berry tossed the ball to Higgins, who waited for Luke to arrive.

Appling's Single Scores Haas.

Hayes later stole second, after which Hopkins walked. Shea singled to right, Hayes scoring. The bases were loaded after Kennedy walked. Radcliff singled to center, scoring Hopkins and Shea. Simmons flied to Finney.

Haas opened the third inning with a double off the scoreboard in right center and after Bonura had been retired, scored on Appling's single to right.

The Sox's fifth run was produced in toto after two were out in the

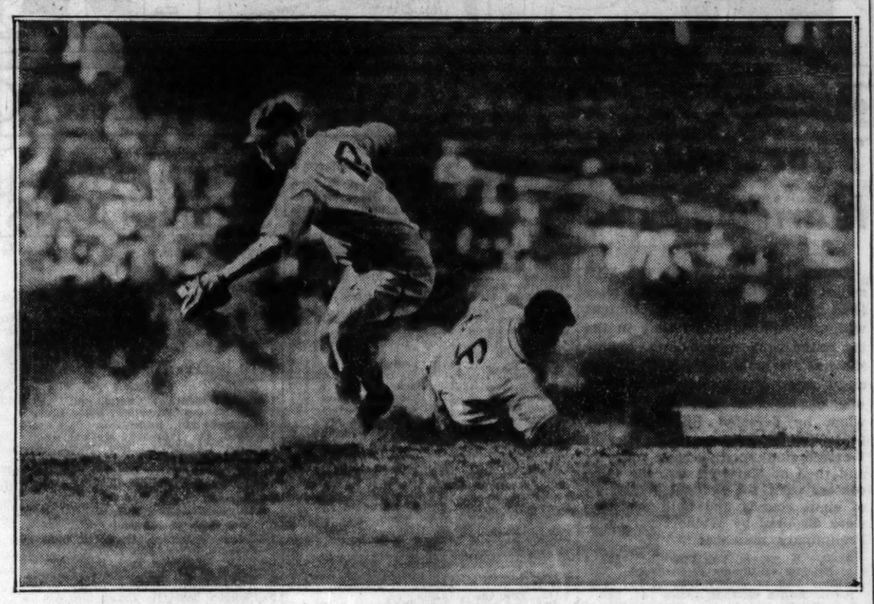
EXCITEMENT AT SECOND LETS GABBY SCORE



Frank Demaree of the Cubs is forced out at second base in seventh inning of yesterday's game with the Brooklyn Dodgers at Wrigley field. Jimmy Jordan, Brooklyn second baseman, is throwing the ball to first in an effort to get Phil Cavarretta and complete a double play. The ball arrived too late and while all this was going on, Gabby Hartnett scored from third. The Cubs won, 6-3.

O'Mahoney, Savoldi Meet in Title Match

The Card

Danno O'Mahoney, heavyweight champion, vs. Joe Savoldi, one fall, 90 minute time limit [title].

Chief Little Wolf vs. Emil Dusek.

Pete Mehringer vs. Norman [Rusty] Westcoatt.

Frank Brunowicz vs. Jim McMillen.

Lou Plummer vs. Serge Kalmikoff.

The Chicago Stadium, world's largest indoor sports arena, tonight will celebrate its seventh annual fall opening with a heavyweight wrestling show featuring a title bout between the champion, Danno O'Mahoney, Ballydehob, West Cork, Ireland, and Joe Savoldi, Three Oaks, Mich.

The huge west side building has been repainted and redecorated inside and outside for the inaugural.

Champion's First Stadium Match.

Though O'Mahoney has wrestled in Chicago twice previously, defeating Gino Garibaldi and George Zaharias, he will be making his first Stadium start in the Savoldi match, which is set for one fall with a 90 minute time limit.

O'Mahoney concluded last week's endeavors by winning over Gus Sonnenberg, former title holder, at Philadelphia Friday after 22 minutes and 8 seconds.

Savoldi reached the height of fame and glory and then dropped to the depths of defeat and humiliation in his last two bouts in the Stadium. On April 7, 1933, the former Notre Dame football player reached the pinnacle of the success he sought by whipping the old champion of all the wrestlers, Jim Londos.

Londos Regains Title.

But Londos and his adherents did not abide by this result. They protested Londos had been robbed of his most cherished possession by an alleged unfair referee. Consequently, Savoldi met Londos at the Stadium again, Jan. 31, of last year. Londos won the match with a reverse body hold in 21:40, and so regained the championship.

Savoldi and O'Mahoney have met before, the champion being awarded a verdict at Washington, D. C., Aug. 7. Savoldi was disqualified for kicking O'Mahoney out of the ring. He weighed 206 pounds, 14 less than the Irishman. There will be four supporting encounters on tonight's card.

Warneke After No. 19 Against Giants Today

Lon Warneke of the Cubs, who is right handy as Giant tamer, will be ready to welcome the New Yorkers today in the opener of the four game series at Wrigley field. The Arkansas sniper has a record of 18 victories and 13 defeats. His last six starts have been winners, but in between he was beaten in a relief job.

Hartnett's thirteenth homer, hit in the first inning yesterday was his first since Aug. 29 at Boston.

Bill Terry, the Giants' boss, pitched Carl Hubbell out of turn yesterday, so the Cubs' won't have to contend with the star southpaw this afternoon but will get him later in the series. Harry Gumbert, recently purchased from Baltimore, may be today's starter.

The teams probably will line up as follows:

Bears Run Up 41 to 0 Score on Kenosha Legion

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Warming up for their league opener with the Packers at Green Bay next Sunday, the Chicago Bears defeated the Kenosha American Legion youngsters, 41 to 0, today.

The Bears were held to one touchdown in the first quarter, scoring on a pass from Dunlap to Hewitt after Crawford had run 35 yards to the 1 yard line, where he laid down the ball, thinking he had crossed the goal.

Kenosha reached the Bears' 16 yard line with two successive first downs on passes in the second quarter, but never got any closer.

Gains by Gene Ronzani were responsible for three of the six Bears' touchdowns, one of which Ronzani made himself.

Greentree Is Winner, 10-9, in Polo Upset

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Jock Whitney's Greentree team galloped into the finals of the national open polo tournament today by upsetting the Templeton team, last year's champion, 10 to 9, in a wildly exciting match. The teams rode into the last period deadlocked at 9 goals. In that last period, bitterly fought all the way, Pete Bostwick rode through to the winning goal.

Twenty thousand watched as the young Templeton riders, champions twice in the past, fought themselves out against a team which today was just a shade too good for them.

Play Final Wednesday.

Greentree will play Aurora in the final match on Wednesday afternoon. The Monty Waterbury cup tournament, in which the same teams play under handicap, will start Tuesday.

Today's game was close all the way. The score was tied six times, and it was uncertain right down to the final bell, which rang just as Jock Whitney narrowly missed another goal for his team.

Balding Takes Tumble.

Gerald Balding, playing at No. 3 for Greentree, turned in a superb performance despite the fact that he was on the ground for ten minutes after a stunning fall in the fifth period. He remounted and came back to continue his valuable play. Up front, Bostwick had a really fine day at No. 1, leading his side's scoring with six goals. Lineup:

Ghezzi Wins Maryland Open Golf Title with 282

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Victor Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., professional, won the Maryland open golf championship here today, firing a pair of 70's for par scores in the final round. Ghezzi's score for the 72 holes was 71—71—70—70—282, three better than the runnerup, Gene Kunes of Norristown, Pa.

POLICE GUARD MEL OTT DURING NINTH INNING

Record 42,284 Watch Hubbell Win.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 15.—The reinspired New York Giants defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 3, today. A record 42,284 shrilling fans, who filled every seat in Sportsman's park, draped themselves along grand stand eaves, clung to water spouts and spilled onto the outfield grass, where they were herded by mounted cops, who galloped their handsome horses in front of picket lines.

The great, but overworked, Dizzy Dean made a gallant effort to rescue his skidding St. Louis Cardinals, but lost to Carl Hubbell. It was Dizzy's third appearance in four days and his second defeat of the series.

The Giants, in taking three of four games here, dumped the Cards deeper into second place, two games from the top.

Ott Is Hurt by Thrown Bottle.

Today's game, like the three preceding contests, was a good brawl, jammed with color and curse words, flying spikes, and flying fists. Melvin Ott dashed back in the eighth inning and hauled down Gelbert's line drive, in the midst of jeering, jostling fans, to shut off a two run Cardinal rally and leave two men stranded on bases. A near riot developed, however, when an empty soda bottle came whizzing out of the crowd and struck Ott in the kidney, causing him to wheel and stagger.

Ott clung to the ball, however, and then charged into the swirling crowd in pursuit of his tormentor. Mounted cops stormed up and hostile fans boiled about the Giant outfielder, who was lost to sight for five minutes. Searching parties sprinted out of the Giant dugout and Ott, red of face and tattered, was plucked back onto a cleared section of the turf.

Ott finished the game standing stoutly in right with an alert sorrel horse and officer at his side. The three, player, horse, and bluecoat, maintained this position through the ninth inning, during which the Cardinals considerately refrained from knocking baseballs in Ott's direction.

Dizzy Is Tired and Ineffective.

Dean, arm weary and sunken cheeked, was pounded for twelve hits and five runs in the first five innings, and therein lies the story of New York's victory, for Hubbell was shaken up by late hard drives and needed his early lead.

Moore, Koenig, and Ott singled at the outset for the first run. Leiber fired a home run into the left field bleachers with Terry aboard in the third; oKenig, Lieber, Mancuso, and Bartell singled for two more in the fifth. Pitcher Walker, Dean's successor, was assaulted in the seventh when a two bagger by Terry and singles by Mancuso and Critz ran the total to 7 runs.

Ducky Medwick socked a terrific home run in the sixth, but the bases were empty at the time. Virgil Davis singled in the eighth, scoring Rothrock and Medwick. Then Durocher missed a home run by a yard when he bounced a ball off the bleacher wall. Ott then hauled down Gelbert's stiff drive.

BABE STAPP WINS 50 MILE RACE AT ROBY; SNYDER 2D

McQuinn Injured as Car Catches Fire.

Elbert [Babe] Stapp, Los Angeles, Cal., won the 50 mile automobile race at Roby Speedway yesterday. Driving 50 laps over the one mile dirt track in 39 minutes 54.2 seconds, an average of speed of 75.3 miles an hour, Stapp beat out a field of the nation's leading drivers before a crowd of 16,000.

Jimmy Snyder, Chicago, finished second, a third of a lap behind the winner. Wild Bill Cummings, who won the 1934 Indianapolis race, was third. Wilbur Shaw, who finished second in the 1934 Memorial day grind, was fourth; Emil Andres, another Chicago driver, was fifth, and Frank Brisko sixth.

Leads All the Way.

Stapp, who is 31 years old, led the race from the start. Shaw kept right after Stapp until the 34th lap when his Burd piston ring special developed motor trouble and Snyder moved into second place. Snyder made a bid for the lead several times, but Stapp kept his foot on the gas and was able to hold his advantage.

Harry McQuinn, of midget race fame, driving a Miller special, narrowly escaped death when his car caught fire in the backstretch on the 20th lap. McQuinn's car hit the fence and he jumped free from the burning wreck. He suffered burns on his arms and legs and was rushed to St. Margaret hospital in Hammond.

Clark Forced Out.

Maynard Clark, who is in second position in the fight for the midwestern championship, failed to qualify for the big race. Clark led the pack in one of the ten mile events, but was forced out because of motor trouble.

The midwestern championship will be decided at the Roby Speedway on the next four Sundays. Next Sunday Kelly Petillo, winner of this year's 500 miler at Indianapolis, will compete.

state reserve evacuated by Labor day and, except for those who motored today from the cities, the year round residents are the only ones to watch Baer's activities.

Starts Drive Tomorrow.

Baer will not work in the ring tomorrow. On Tuesday he will begin his final drive, finishing next Sunday afternoon, after which he will leave for New York to remain in seclusion until time to weigh in at the offices of the New York athletic commission.

Max apparently will have the proper mental attitude when he faces the Brown Bomber, who in the summer campaign has decisively disposed of Primo Carnera and King Levinsky in his steady climb toward a championship fight. Carnera fell before Louis' punches and Levinsky lasted less than a round, but that means nothing to this confident fighter. Baer stopped Carnera a year ago when he took Primo's title from him, and last winter he dropped Levinsky. Quite naturally, Louis' record, which only matches his own, does not frighten the one time butcher lad who only appreciated a heavyweight title after he had tossed it away.

LOUIS IMPRESSES CROWD

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 15.—(AP)—More than 3,000 persons watched today as Joe Louis unleashed his best fighting fury.

It was the largest crowd in the history of Dr. Joseph Bier's training camp and sent it away convinced that the power of his crushing fists is no myth.

Lew Flowers was the first spar mate. The second round had to be cut short when Flowers began to stagger under Louis' blows. Paul Cavalier, who followed, made things interesting for a round, but in the second Louis found his target and Cavalier left the ring bleeding from the nose and mouth. He was staggered by a right just as the round ended.

Bob Moody was next. He had his mouthpiece knocked out by a left hook and his headgear ripped by a right cross as he got within range.

Louis wound up the day by going a fast round with Roy Williams.

YANKEES' RALLY IN 7TH DEFEATS DETROIT, 8 TO 7

Murphy's Relief Hurling Stops Tigers.

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The Yankees had their final crack at Detroit's American league lead today when they staged a rally in the seventh, after a five run Tiger blast in the third, and won their final game with the leaders, 8 to 7, before 19,789.

Despite the victory, the Yanks find themselves in the almost hopeless position of being 8½ games behind two weeks before the close of the season. Johnny Murphy did a great job of relief hurling to earn his eighth triumph of the season.

sixth. After Appling and Hayes had been set down Hopkins and Shea walked and when Kennedy singled to right Hopkins scored.

Cramer Helps Out Sox.

Careless base running by Cramer helped the Sox get out of a bad jam in the sixth. McNair led off with a walk and scored on Berry's double. Dietrich fanned, but Warstler walked. Cramer singled to left, scoring Berry. Warstler stopped at second, but this did not deter Cramer from running to the base himself. Both runners were tagged on the bag, and Cramer was called out. Finney walked, but Foxx popped to Hayes.

Kennedy issued his eighth, ninth, and tenth passes with two out in the eighth and Manager Dykes replaced him with Wyatt. Wyatt got Foxx for the third out.

Sox Lose Lead in Ninth.

Here's the way the Sox lost their two run lead and almost blew the ball game in the ninth. Higgins opened with a single to deep short and Johnson drew the eleventh Sox pass. McNair struck out, but Berry socked a hit to right, which went for a triple when Haas elected to try for a shoestring catch and missed. The smash scored Higgins and Johnson with the tying runs and the potential winning run was on third with one out. Peerson went to third and Richards batted for Caster. Richards slammed a grounder to Wyatt, who ran over to the third base line and tagged Peerson, who had sprawled in his efforts to get back to third.

The Sox failed to threaten Ferrazzi in the tenth and Wyatt disposed of two batsmen in the home tenth. Then Foxx singled and Higgins knocked his home run.

SUHR TIES MARK AS PIRATES WIN FROM PHILS, 5-3

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 15.—(AP)—First Baseman Gus Suhr equaled the National league record for having taken part in the most consecutive games today, as Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia, 5 to 3, at Forbes field.

Suhr has played in 618 games, not missing one since Sept. 11, 1931, although several times he has played but an inning, as he did today. Eddie Brown, formerly of the Boston Braves, established the record during the seasons from 1924 to 1928.

Cubs Win, 6-3; Increase Lead to Two Games

started his day of labor by passing Boyle. This was cleaned up on Frey's grounder through the agility of Jurges, Herman and Cavarretta in the production of a double play. Then the Dodgers slapped it on thick. Bucher poked a single to right and Leslie walked. Mills, the ex-Cardinal chain gang member, banged a triple to right center to score Bucher and Leslie. Stripp flied to Lindstrom for the third out.

The Cubs stepped out with two hits off Clark in their half of the first and that was enough to get the two tying runs across the plate. Galan opened with a drive that bounced off the left field brick wall for a double. He went to third on Herman's infield out and scored while Frey was throwing out Lindstrom. Then Hartnett sailed a long fly to right and it had just enough push to clear the right field screen for homer No. 13. Demaree ended the inning with a roller to Jordan.

Make It Easy for Cubs.

Hack hit a single to left with one out in the second and this was all the Cubs had to do to get two runs. The Dodgers did the rest. Jurges sent a bounder into Stripp's hands and the young man had good intentions, but poor aim. He should have been instrumental in starting a double play, but instead gave the ball a wild heave into right field, Hack going to third and Jurges to second. Not wishing to be shown up when it came to errors, Frey booted Lee's grounder and Hack scored while Jurges went to third. Jurges hiked home on Galan's fly to right and Jordan threw out Herman.

You wouldn't believe it if you didn't see it, but the Dodgers really conducted themselves flawlessly in the third, despite a hit by Demaree. In the fourth, however, they were doing business as usual. Hack led off with a poke to short and Frey, still ambitious to make bigger and better bobbles, threw the ball into the enemy dugout, Hack going to second. He moved to third on Jurges' out and stayed there while Lee was being retired. But Clark contributed a wild pitch and Hack dashed home. Then Galan walked and with the help of a high throw from Lopez stole second, but Herman was set down.

Frey Kicks No. 3.

The Dodgers tried to do some more chiseling on their pal Clark in the sixth, but the southpaw didn't let 'em get away with it. Stripp threw out the first two men and the third out should have been recorded on the next batter, Jurges, but Frey erred for the third time. Jurges went to second on a wild pitch. Lee scratched a hit to Jordan and a pass to Galan filled the bases. Nothing happened because Jordan picked up Herman's grounder and threw him out.

In the seventh the Cubs scored a run, making it 6 to 2, without waiting for the customary assistance from the Daffy Boys. After Lindstrom had lofted to left, Hartnett lined safely to the right field screen and puffed his way successfully to second. Demaree scratched a single off Clark's glove and Gabby went to third. He scored while Cavarretta was forcing Demaree. Cavarretta tried to steal second, but didn't make it.

One of the few hits off Lee after his wabbly start was a scratch single by Leslie after two were out in the sixth. He was forced. Jordan singled with one gone in the seventh, but didn't get beyond first base. Then the Dodgers came up with their fifth and sixth hits in the eighth and a run scored. Boyle opened with a single to center and was forced by Frey. Bucher singled to center, putting Frey on third. He registered on Leslie's long fly to Lindstrom.

BONDS AS WHOLE SHOW STRENGTH IN WEEK CLOSED

U. S. Liens Among Groups to Move Lower.

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—While certain individual groups were considerably shaken by selling flurries, the bond market as a whole displayed general steadiness last week.

Underlying investment conditions underwent no marked change. The underwriting quarters of Wall street were pleased at the good reception accorded the new 50 million dollar offering of Socony-Vacuum corporation 3½ per cent debentures, which was the outstanding item in an otherwise quiet week for new financing.

U. S. Issues Decline.

United States government issues suffered another touch of depression from causes which were not quite clear to dealers. Their losses were not heavy, but volume increased on the declines and during the last half of the period the type of investment underwent no marked change. The underwriting quarters of Wall street were pleased at the good reception accorded the new 50 million dollar offering of Socony-Vacuum corporation 3½ per cent debentures, which was the outstanding item in an otherwise quiet week for new financing.

Bonds of speculative quality had their ups and downs with the stock market, but with few exceptions values were not impaired. Some issues in this category were benefited by special developments, as, for example, the loans of Southern Railway, which were responsive to the reassuring statement of the president of the system as to interest charges due on Oct. 1 and Jan. 1.

Canadian Rails Ease.

Some of the Canadian Railway issues, notably those of Canadian National Railways, sold heavily, which involved sharp declines. This development was viewed as a possible expression of concern over coming elections in the dominion.

The Italian-Ethiopian situation continued to cast a shadow over European obligations in the foreign list, but except in Italian loans no wide declines were recorded. Even these steadied near the close of the week, and their recovery was coincident with a sharp advance in German government 5½s and 7s.

TAXES ARE MORE THAN EARNINGS ON WARD STOCK

Avery Warns About Political Waste.

Tax collectors took from the earnings of Montgomery Ward and company 25 per cent more than the amount left for the common stock holders, Sewell L. Avery, president, disclosed yesterday in his report for the first six months of 1935. Earnings were 80 cents per common share. Taxes were more than $1 per common share.

Warning stockholders and customers that the costly results of political extravagance will fall increasingly on them, Avery urged the stockholders to carry their influence to the polls.

"Stockholders justifiably look to the management for the safeguarding of their investments," he said, "but it must be recognized that in the face of burdensome and inequitable taxes, managements are severely handicapped in the conduct of business.

Urges Vote Against Extravagance.

"This responsibility rests upon you, as a stockholder, a consumer, and a citizen, to earnestly direct the influence which you can exercise by your vote to the elimination of extravagant, wasteful expenditures, and uneconomic and unsound taxation by federal, state, and local governments. Corporations have no vote."

Avery pointed out that not only is there little prospect for tax reductions, but that there is every indication taxes will continue to climb. Referring to taxes paid during the six months to July 31, 1935, he said.

"This tax burden is more than double that of two years ago. The recent federal social security legislation, effective next Jan. 1, will, during the next four years, increase our annual tax costs from $300,000 to $500,000 cumulatively each year. This will mean an added cost by 1940 of at least $1,500,000 per year in this one item alone.

Stockholders or Customers Must Pay.

"These taxes, even though concealed in the way they are imposed, must be paid either by our stockholders or by our customers. Their effect is to increase the cost of merchandise to consumers, and to restrict seriously the return on your investment in the company. High taxes are the inevitable result of heavy government spending and we must expect even more drastic taxes in the future."

Net sales of Montgomery Ward for the six months ended July 31 were $128,137,884. This was a 21 per cent increase over the sales of $105,983,807 for the corresponding 1934 period. Net profits, however, held back by rising taxes, rose only about 5 per cent to $4,349,766, against $4,158,696, or 77 cents per common share, for the six months to July 31, 1934.

Taxes aggregated $4,600,000, more than $1,000,000 in excess of taxes paid in the six months to July 31, 1934.

Current assets on July 31, 1935, including cash and securities of $16,444,183, totaled $104,112,924. This was 6.53 times current liabilities of $15,954,209.

AVERT STRIKE IN APPALACHIAN COAL DISTRICT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—(AP)—For the sixth time this year, negotiations started off afresh today toward a new wage and hour agreement for the vast Appalachian soft coal fields. A fifth threat of a nation-wide bituminous strike was averted temporarily early this morning when John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, agreed to extend the union's present contract until next Sunday midnight.

The contract would have expired at midnight tonight. Negotiations toward a new one had broken down completely when Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, proposed the extension.

Potato Control Branded Peak of Absurdity

Regimentation of agriculture reached the high point of absurdity in the potato control act of 1935, says the American Liberty league in its latest analysis of New Deal legislation. It declares it is a ridiculous law, making a travesty of constitutional liberties and proposing to inflict on the American people a bureaucratic despotism, including a new army of federal snoopers, to be paid through increased living costs for the entire population.

"Nothing so fantastic has emerged from the 'economic planners' of the last two and a half years," says the study. "A serious attempt to enforce it will necessarily involve fines and jail sentences for citizens exercising rights enjoyed without question for 150 years of the American constitution.

Another Step in Federal Control.

"The ridiculous law, demanded by 30,000 large potato growers whose markets have been demoralized by excessive production on land diverted from other uses by AAA regulations, illustrates strikingly how one step in control leads to another."

The survey declares the potato control act is of doubtful constitutionality and is arbitrary, unreasonable, and uneconomic for the following reasons:

1. The act attempts to control production of potatoes through a punitive tax of questionable validity.

2. It is intended to benefit large commercial growers but will harass several million small growers and burden the entire consuming population.

3. To present excessive costs of many articles of food will be added higher prices for a staple commodity upon which poorer classes are dependent.

Farmers Compelled to Submit.

4. Regimentation of farmers who produce potatoes is compulsory rather than voluntary.

5. Even a small garden patch maintained by a housewife and producing only a few bushels for sale is subject to control.

6. Regulations which will annoy both producers and consumers include requirements that all potatoes must be packed in closed and stamped containers of special design.

7. Provision is made for an army of snoopers through severe penalties imposed on persons who fail to tell of violations by their neighbors.

8. Bootlegging will be unavoidable despite fines up to $1,000 and jail sentences up to one year.

9. Buyers of bootleg potatoes are made guilty equally with sellers.

10. An expanded burocracy, made possible by blanket authority to the secretary of agriculture to appoint officials and employés without regard to civil service and classification laws, will meddle in the affairs of some 3,000,000 potato growers.

Benefits of Plan Doubtful.

The Liberty league says benefits of the plan are doubtful. If prices can be maintained large growers may find it worth while to submit to regimentation, it declares, adding that the millions of small growers may find benefits offset by red tape and extra costs of the special containers.

"The AAA has become enmeshed in a network of its own making," the study continues. "The original act provided for seven basic commodities. Now there are fifteen, and congress and enforcement officials must go on until every product of agriculture is brought under control.

"The process must extend to competitive industrial products, some of which are already under AAA regulations. The system may break down of its own weight or be wiped out by the courts. Otherwise, it is leading inevitably to methods of restriction of the private lives and business activities of our people wholly foreign to American institutions. Potato control is another step toward socialism."

Heavy Shipments Taxing Northwest Rail Facilities

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 15. (AP)—Railroad men who haven't worked since 1929 are being employed on the three transcontinental lines through Spokane, the Union Pacific, Milwaukee, and Northern Pacific, officials reported today. A rush of grain shipments, with timber products, early fruit and sheep, is taxing rail facilities to the limit.

Rayon production, both here and abroad, for the current year is likely to exceed by a wide margin the output record of 1934, according to Textile World.

NEWS OF TRADE GAINS PUSHES STOCKS HIGHER

Market Climbs Six Months in Row.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 15.—Favored by reports pointing to further gains in trade, especially in the steel, automobile, and building construction lines, the stock market continues to ignore warnings of caution and to forge ahead on a broad front.

The advance clicked off its sixth straight month with the close of trading in yesterday's short session, having gotten under way on March 14. During this prolonged period of constructive endeavor—a movement interrupted by only one major setback, that in the last week in May, when the averages sold off between 6 and 7 per cent—the listed value of numerous stocks of varied denomination has been enhanced more than 100 per cent and a sizable group has trebled and even quadrupled in value.

Near 1929 Peaks.

Scarcely a week has gone by without seeing a new "average" high for the year or longer chalked up. During the last week a handful of fast climbers got back to within striking distance of their peaks of 1929 and the main body of stocks approximated its best levels for 1931. On one day of the period—Wednesday—the averages got up more than 30 points above their March lows, recording a new high for the year of 108.56. They closed yesterday at 106.68, about a half point above their level for the preceding Saturday. The week-end recession was due to a mild wave of profit taking by traders influenced by persistent talk of an "overdue technical correction" after the long advance.

Industrial shares continue to make the best showing, although the utilities show up almost as well on the movement as a whole. Of late this group has been making determined strides toward recovery from the setback it suffered when congress was debating the "death penalty" holding bill provision. Railroad issues have made great progress, although lagging behind the other divisions somewhat.

News Continues Bright.

In spite of the persistent predictions of a temporary reversal, little of an untoward nature in the news has come forward over the week to embarrass the market or affect the business picture upon which it so strongly depends. Country-wide retail sales of goods are currently reported as the largest for the period in five years, exceeding 1934 in the farming districts by 15 to 55 per cent.

The month's first weekly statement of the railway freight movement revealed much the largest car loadings of any Labor day week since 1931; grain loadings rose 15 per cent over 1934. Steel output increased last week to 54 per cent of capacity. With the exception of a short period in 1932, this was the first occasion since 1928 in which early fall had not brought a decline. One or two of the "backward" commodities, like wool, have become conspicuously active.

Influx of Foreign Money.

Still other factors working to lift prices include the influx of at least moderate amounts of foreign money, driven this way by the unsettled political situation abroad, the doubts over the ability of the gold bloc countries to avoid devaluation of their currencies, and the rooted conviction that this country's industries have more vitality than those of any other nation.

New Morgan Investment Firm Will Start Today

New York, Sept. 15. (AP)—The newly organized investment firm of Morgan Stanley & Co., composed of several former partners of J. P. Morgan & Co., will open its doors for business tomorrow. The partners severed their connections with the banking firm last week. The new organization will have quarters in the First National Bank building, a short block distant from the house of Morgan, which will continue to operate as a deposit banking institution.

HARRISON POST ON WORLD BANK AGAIN DISCUSSED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—[Special.]—The question of George Harrison, head of the New York Federal Reserve bank, becoming a director of the Bank of International Settlements has again been raised, this time with the approval of President Roosevelt, but still against the wishes of the federal reserve board, it was indicated today.

The reserve board, headed by Marriner S. Eccles, has reiterated its traditional objections to a reserve bank officer becoming involved in the international bank but has not brought the question to a formal vote. Under the terms of the 1933 banking act Harrison cannot accept the post without the board's permission.

President Roosevelt, however, is understood to have taken the position that Harrison is the best equipped man to assume the directorship in the B. I. S., which is reserved for an American.

Harrison has long been desirous of sitting on the directorate of the B. I. S., but the reserve board has always refused him permission. Since May the American directorship has been vacant and government officials are anxious that it be filled so that America will be in contact with the doings of European central banks.

CONTINENTAL CAN TO EXPAND PLANT AT STOCKYARDS

Construction of a three story addition to the plant of the Continental Can company in South Ashland avenue, close to the stockyards, will be started within the next thirty days, the company announced yesterday. The addition will be equipped with sixteen lines of can manufacturing machinery and the total expenditure will approximate $1,000,000.

Completion of the addition will enable the company to improve its services to the meat packing concerns in the vicinity, it was stated.

The new building will be of reinforced concrete construction and will embrace about 160,000 square feet of floor space. It will be erected on property recently acquired by Continental Can from the trustees of the Central Manufacturing district. The plant will be the forty-first to be operated by the company.

Continental Can recently started work on an addition to its plant at North and Kilpatrick avenues.

'CONSTITUTION' TO BE SUBJECT OF CLINNIN TALK

Gen. John V. Clinnin, speaking on "The Constitution," will talk to the Junior Association of Commerce today at noon at the Morrison hotel in the first meeting of the association's fall and winter program. Frederick Gallagher, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation office in Chicago, will speak on Sept. 23. Otis F. Glenn, former United States senator from Illinois, will address the group two weeks later. On Sept. 30 the speaker will be Thomas Wolfe, district trafic manager for United Air Lines.

TEN MAJOR PACKING COMPANIES TO FACE U. S. HEARING TODAY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Charged with combining to control retail meat prices from 1927 to 1933, ten major packing companies will be called upon tomorrow to answer to Secretary Wallace. Officials said these final oral arguments on accusations Wallace made in 1934 had no connection with current high prices or with the tremendous increase in retail meat prices since 1933. But they hinted that the recent burden on the housewife's budget might be discussed.

The defendants are: Armour and company; Abraham Brothers Packing company, Tennessee; Cudahy Packing company; Jacob Dold Packing company; John Morrell & Co.; Memphis Packing company; Swift & Co.; Wilson & Co.; Morris & Co., and St. Louis Independent Packing company.

They were charged specifically with violating the packers and stockyards act by combining to control retail meat prices, to apportion sales in commerce and to keep out competition. Department officials said Wallace could issue cease and desist orders if the arguments tomorrow led him to believe the companies were guilty of creating a monopoly.

Plaintif and Judge.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Edwin C. Andrews, president of the Jacob Dold Packing company, tonight said he had received no notice of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's intention "to call on us Monday."

"Secretary Wallace instituted this action against the packers and is both plaintif and judge in the case," Andrews said. "This action was started about a year and a half ago. It has never been in a court of law and it has cost the government $1,000,000 and the packers huge sums to prove the charges false. Now, when it is coming to a head, Secretary Wallace as a plaintif and judge will hand down a decision."

PERU COMPLAINS OF POOR PAPER MONEY QUALITY

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 15.—Complaints continue to be heard from many parts of this republic about the derth of small change and also the poor quality of the 50 centavo notes, issued a few months ago because of the sudden rise in the price of silver and consequent speculation and hoarding.

The Central Reserve bank issued a statement to the effect that these notes, issued to the amount of 2,500,000 sols, were printed in Peru on the best available paper, but they were purely provisional pending the arrival from England of copper pieces in the same value, which are due this month. The 1-sol notes to the value of 10,000,000 sols, printed in the United States on strong paper, are satisfactory. There is no scarcity of small change in Lima.

All provincial banks are withdrawing from circulation the 50 centavo notes, and those in bad condition are being sent here to be destroyed. A fifth of the issue has already been destroyed. Silver pieces are again becoming abundant.

OVER 5 BILLION U. S. SECURITIES MATURE IN YEAR

Larger Cities on American Airlines Map

[Because of the big increase in air passenger business this summer the finances of aviation companies have attracted the interest of the business world. Following is the fifth of a series of articles on individual aviation companies.]

When the Aviation corporation reorganized in the early part of 1934 American Airlines, Inc., emerged as an apparently independent transport company. Its stock was distributed to holders of Aviation corporation stock. Control of Aviation corporation was held by E. L. Cord and, according to latest information, he controls American Airlines.

The company is a transport organization carrying air mail, passengers, and express over 6,850 route miles. From New York it has spurs to Boston and Montreal. Its main route extends from New York to Los Angeles, via Philadelphia, Nashville, Dallas, El Paso, and Los Angeles.

Other Routes from Chicago.

Other routes are from Chicago to New York via Detroit and Buffalo; Chicago to Washington through Cincinnati; Chicago to Dallas by way of St. Louis and Oklahoma City, and Cleveland to Nashville by way of Cincinnati. The company's routes contact more large cities than those of any other transport company. Consequently, it has a larger percentage of comparatively short haul trade.

In July, the company carried 19,498 revenue passengers, compared with 17,297 in June and 9,744 in July, 1934. Passengers carried in the first half of 1935 totaled 79,000. In 1934 the company carried 22.2 per cent of total passengers in the United States. Passenger miles flown [total mileage traveled by all passengers] was 16.7 per cent of the United States total.

All-Metal Planes Are Used.

The bulk of the company's fleet is composed of Douglas 14 passenger, all-metal, twin motored airplanes. It also uses Vultee transports and Curtiss Condors [sleeper planes].

From May 13 to Dec. 31, 1934, American Airlines lost $1,371,392. The previous record of operations is not available. On Dec. 31, 1934, the company listed total assets of $5,083,936, of which $1,657,110 were current. Current liabilities were $488,539. Capitalization consists of 277,775 shares of $10 par stock.

[An article on the Curtiss-Wright corporation will appear tomorrow.]

STEEL OUTPUT RISES TO 54%; NEAR 1935 PEAK

Users Buy to Avoid Price Increases.

Developments in the iron and steel industry last week included a rise of 2 points in the operating rate to 54 per cent of capacity, or within ½ point of the 1935 high level of 54½ per cent, established in the first half of February, and an increasingly strong condition in pig iron, according to the magazine Steel.

The journal says consumers are not only covering requirements for their present substantial melt but are also accumulating inventories against prospective heavier requirements and probable price advances.

Most of Operating Centers Gain.

Most of the operating centers showed substantial improvement during the week, with Chicago gaining 2 points to 59 per cent, Cleveland, 11 points to 67 per cent; Pittsburgh, 3 points to 48 per cent; eastern Pennsylvania, 3 points to 35½ per cent; Buffalo, 3 points to 35 per cent; Birmingham, 3 points to 48½ per cent, and New England, 3 points to 73 per cent. Detroit and Wheeling were steady at 94 and 84 per cent respectively, and Youngstown was 3 points lower at 57 per cent.

More Dutch and Russian iron is coming into New England, the magazine says, and Chicago furnaces have built up the largest backlog in several years. One explanation of the increased melt of iron is the brisk demand for sanitary ware, which almost approaches boom proportions and affords a clew to the building situation.

Higher Prices for Scrap Expected.

Bids for railroad material at Pittsburgh indicate a still higher level in scrap prices. The Japanese and west coast market for scrap is soft, but the eastern seaboard trade, possibly due to the European situation, is firm, says the journal.

The rise in scrap has lifted the magazine's composite price for iron and steel to $32.81 a ton, up 2 cents, and the scrap index is 21 cents higher at $12.62 a ton, while the finished steel composite is steady at $53.70 a ton.

A Unique Banking Service

This bank has extended the dignity and convenience of bank credit, in regular banking surroundings, to the average man or woman who had never before been recognized as bank credit risks — simply because they did not possess stocks or bonds.

Many people who borrow from us put up regular banking collateral. But over ninety per cent of them borrow simply on their good name and character. We do not ask them to pledge their piano, or personal effects or wages. All they pledge here is their own name and the backing of a friend or two.

Our rates are low, our terms liberal. In practically every case people are able to make their repayments promptly and regularly.

Because our business dealings are fair and friendly, this bank has won the general good will of Chicago business men, who recognize the real community need for just this kind of a bank.

URGE INVESTORS TO JOIN FIGHT ON UNFAIR LAWS

Utility Group Votes to Expand Program.

The American Federation of Utility Investors, organized to fight unfair and confiscatory utility legislation, has voted to expand its program to include the championing of the interests of investors in all recognized American industries. It henceforth will be known as the American Federation of Investors.

Dr. Hugh Magill, president of the organization, announced the unanimous action of the directors yesterday. He stated the goal of the federation is at least a million members.

"This action," explained Dr. Magill, "is in response to numerous requests, not only by utility investors who are members of the federation, but by investors in the securities of other industries. Many prominent newspapers and magazines have also strongly urged that the federation broaden the scope of its program to include investors in all recognized American industries."

Recalls Fight on Utility Bill.

"The heroic fight made by utility investors against the drastic features of the utility bill attracted nationwide attention. That these investors were robbed of their victory by political manipulations in the last hours of congress does not change the fact that on three occasions the Democratic majority in the house responded to the pleas of the investors for justice against the almost limitless powers of the executive.

"Investors in other industries have come to realize that the stand of the utility investors for the protection of their rights constituted the first line of defense against the concentration of capitalists that are determined to take over all industry under political management and control.

Urge Combating Socialistic Program.

"It has become clear this socialistic onslaught can be successfully met only by the combined resistance of the investor forces of America united in one nation-wide organization.

"The fight for a fair deal for the utility investors will be continued with increased vigor as the federation extends its battle lines to insure a fair deal for honest investors in all American industry. Already tested in fiery conflict, the federation now offers to millions of thrifty Americans an opportunity to unite in support of their own interests, and for the protection of our nation against the blighting forces of state socialism under a political leadership that threatens to destroy our American system of government."

Continental Baking.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information on Continental Baking corporation?—R. W. J.

Answer: Continental Baking corporation, a holding company, is a nation-wide organization but the bulk of its producing facilities are in the northeastern quarter of the United States. It has 100 plants in 70 cities. Bread sales account normally for about 75 per cent of total dollar volume, the remainder being made up of cake and pastry sales.

Both dollar and volume sales have shown healthy increases. The company, however, has been unable to translate increased sales into increased profits because of the processing tax, other added taxes, and higher costs of labor, materials, and supplies. Keen competition in the industry prevents passing these higher costs on to the consumer in full.

In the twenty-six weeks to June 30, 1935, net income was $737,000, or only $1.84 per share of 8 per cent preferred; in the first half of 1934 it was $837,000, or $2.04 per share of preferred.

Net income in 1934 was $2,005,000, or $4.99 per preferred share, against $2,788,000, or $6.79 per preferred share, for 1933. In 1932 net was $2,759,000 and in 1931 $4,243,000.

On June 29, 1935, current assets, including $4,271,000 cash, were $7,271,000, and current liabilities were $1,440,000. Funded debt was $1,138,000. GRAIN FUTURES EASIER; FOREIGN UPTURN IGNORED

Cash Trades Are Made at Higher Levels.

Chicago grain futures moved irregularly lower last week, ignoring buoyant markets abroad. Trading dawdled most of the time. The modest flare of excitement which characterized closing sessions of the preceding week were entirely lacking and activity was confined to the moderate proportions which has ruled much of this year's turnover.

The September, or cash, futures were higher for the week in all instances. Wheat confined its advance to a major fraction and corn, oats, and rye moved ahead 1 to more than 2 cents a bushel.

European markets have been advancing, apparently in belated reflection of short supplies of wheat held abroad and the probability that available world stocks are no longer abundant.

Chicago Prices Fairly Steady.

Chicago prices have held fairly steady despite hedging pressure which the market has had to absorb because of a heavy movement of grain from the country to primary markets. The primary volume was more than double that of last year.

The upturn in farm selling resulted largely from a sharp advance in premiums paid for cash wheat over future prices, making it possible for farmers to secure more than a dollar a bushel for hard wheat in a large part of the territory. High protein varieties in Kansas City sold as high as $1.25 a bushel, while in Chicago No. 2 hard winter wheat procured a price of $1.14 a bushel.

The advance in cash wheat, which has gone far ahead of futures, has led farmers to sell remaining holdings and also to dispose of storage tickets on a large scale.

Hedging Depresses May Deliveries.

Because of the hedging against this wheat Chicago May deliveries are now selling at discounts of 10 to 25 cents under cash prices. This seems to be an anomaly, but is explainable by the fact that requirements of the Chicago Board of Trade permit delivery of soft red winter wheat, of which there is a greater supply, relatively, than in hard winters and spring wheats.

This situation has resulted in an abnormally close spread between the September and May deliveries. The cost of carrying wheat from now to May 1, including storage, insurance and interest charges, is more than 10 cents a bushel. The difference in price between September and May wheat is only 1½ cents a bushel.

Weather Favors Corn Growth.

Weather continues to be extremely favorable for corn. There has been a slight increase in country offerings for deferred shipment but this has not been sufficient to exert any material pressure on the futures market.

Shorts in the September future are thought to be in a precarious position, because of small supplies available for delivery, while in some quarters a "squeeze" or an extremely "tight" situation, is thought not impossible when the December future becomes deliverable.

New York, Sept. 15.—[Special.]—Net asset value of the National Bond and Share corporation as of Aug. 31, after provision for the dividend of 25 cents a share to be paid tomorrow, was $46.64 a share on the 180,000 shares of capital stock outstanding.
